DIVER IMPRISONED 69 HOURS FOUND DEAD BY WORKERS

Lifeless Body, Torn and Bruised and with One Leg Crushed, Brought to Surface; Uniform Practically Torn from His Back

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 30—Peter Trans, diver who was imprisoned for 69 hours in the icy waters of the river at Riviera Aux Outardes, is dead according to word which was received here today.

His lifeless body, torn and bruised and with one leg smashed from being battered by the raging river against the cribbing in which he was held captive—was brought to the surface today.

His heavy diver's uniform had been practically torn from his back by the terrific force of the river currents. He had been lodged in the cribbing, erected as a part of a dam for the Ontario paper company since 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

Trans' body was freed from its under-water grave and brought to the surface by Quesnel Moreney and Levis Begin, professional divers, who reached Riviere Aux Outardes by airplane yesterday and immediately descended into the river.

Word that Trans had been brought to the surface was received at 9:20 o'clock this morning by Harold Nelson, manager of the Ontario Paper Co., employers of Trans. The information came in a telegram over the lone telegraph wire which has been in operation at brief intervals to Point Outarde, near the scene. Trans had submerged at 10:30 o'clock Monday. His diving apparatus became entangled and he was unable to come up.

Rescue divers had worked all night in the chilled waters of the river in desperate attempts to bring the imprisoned man to the surface. The divers had been rushed by airplane to the scene.

Trans was 35 years old, a native of Jutland. He came to Canada in 1928, leaving behind a wife and two sons, Eigel and Peter.

For the last 24 hours Mrs. Trans was being advised by cable of the progress of the rescue work.

Just before Trans submerged for the last time at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning he had come to the surface and asked that his ladder be moved. A few minutes later he reported his work was going well. And then—suddenly—his signals ceased.

The body of Trans was raised through a pocket in the crib under which he had been tightly lodged for practically three days and nights.

CHICAGO TAXI MEN ARE SLAIN

Two Killed by Assassins Who Ordered Cab Driven to Rogers Park Section

RESULT OF STRIFE

Driver Found Slumped Over Wheel; Motor and Meter Still Running

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—Barney J. Mitchell, treasurer of the Checker Taxicab Co. and George Jackson, driver, were shot and killed today by unknown assassins who commandeered their cab in the heart of the exclusive Rogers Park section.

Reconstruction of the crime by police indicates Mitchell was slain as a possible outcome of strife that has been noticeable within the organization recently. Jackson authorities believe, was killed on the "dead men tell no tales" theory.

Mitchell was found in the rear of the car, on his knees as if imploring his killers to spare him. Five bullets had entered his body.

Jackson was slumped over the wheel with one bullet in his head. It was apparent that the man who shot Jackson held the pistol directly against his head. The cab's motor and meter still were running.

It is believed the assassins trailed Mitchell's cab from his office. When they struck the residential district where the killing took place they must have fired a warning shot to stop the cab as a bullet hole was found through the back of it.

Mitchell was reelected treasurer of the Checker cab company on Jan. 9 after a stormy election.

Mitchell and the other officers represent one of the several cliques who have been battling for control of the taxi company every since its founding.

RIVER BOAT BURNS

Blaze Sweeps Structure and It Goes Down Near Gallipolis

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., Jan. 30—The towboat Clyde which has been plying between Pittsburgh and Memphis lies in "Davy Jones locker" in the Ohio river today after a fire which virtually destroyed the craft last night.

The blaze of an unknown origin swept through the superstructure of the Clyde so rapidly it was thought that other river craft might be endangered. The mooring lines of the burning vessel parted, however, and allowed it to drift down the river near Gallipolis where it sank.

Damage was estimated at $80,000.

Home Weather
Will Hays, and Purity
Aimee McPherson's Debut
Two Fine Buildings

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30—After the rain that means prosperity, the sun is shining, hot and bright.

Angelenos, as the inhabitants of this happy city call themselves, early or recent arrivals, from different states, tell you about their home weather.

An ex-New Yorker says New York is cold and slushy, and seems to enjoy it.

A former Oregonian tells you, with intense satisfaction, that in his part of the world the big Williamette river is frozen solid, automobiles driving over it. Ice breakers are clearing a water path for boats.

* * *

Will Hays, czar, censor, and loving big brother of the movies, is here. To say that everything is pure in motion picture production is putting it mildly.

Miss Norma Shearer, doing "Ex-Wife" in a sound proof building, says "because my play has a dubious name it has to be sweeter and purer than Pollyanna and Little Rollo. Even the sophisticated would hardly know that the ex-wife had any kind of a past or present."

* * *

Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, brilliant young revivalist, who has caused many to mend their ways, will make talkies and preach on a really big scale.

"Sermonettes" to make heaven and hell as real as Santa Monica and Wall Street will be sent far and wide, preaching the gospel to all the world, literally.

* * *

The directing gentleman got useful experience directing the production of "Dante's Inferno." Mrs. McPherson promises to make Dante's effort seem as mild as a Mother Goose story.

* * *

ARCHITECTS and business men should see two buildings recently erected here. The Richfield Oil building, corner of Sixth and Flower streets, is a monument of black and gold, something in the style of Mr. Woolley's American Radiator building in New York, but blacker, with much more gold. It rebukes dull brick and stone.

The "Bullock-Wilshire" building, a branch of Bullock's big downtown establishment, almost eclipses in lavish expenditure the Bamberger store in Newark, N. J.

* * *

Owners of Bullock's wish you to know that the new store was produced entirely by Los Angeles architects and workmen, no materials bought outside of Los Angeles, except marble from Missouri.

Concentrated Los Angeles civic pride has a good deal to do with this city's progress.

If an Angeleno lady falls downstairs in the suburbs and sprains her ankle, that's more important to Los Angeles newspapers that would be the simultaneous blowing up of Vesuvius, Aetna, Mount Pelee and Popocatpetl.

LOWER California, long peninsula owned by Mexico, stretching a thousand miles along the Pacific south of the California border, offers opportunity to some young men with millions and ambition — Harkness, who has given millions to Harvard and Yale; young Leeds, the tinplate heir, who seems anxious to do something, or some other.

* * *

There has been offered to this writer a tract on that peninsula running 400 miles along the coast, 10 miles wide.

With this fair-sized kingdom many interesting experiments could be made, if the experimenter had millions of dollars as well as millions of acres.

The British, while they talk sweet peace, maintain their ancient common sense. The Los Angeles Herald prints a photograph taken inside of "the largest airplane producing factory in the world." This photograph shows scores of small, all steel planes in process of construction. These planes called "British Bulldogs" are built to provide a warm welcome for any air invaders.

* * *

Plans now under way will make the Boeing plant in Seattle, one of the important units in Charles E. Mitchell's "United Aircraft," the biggest airplane factory in the world.

At present the British have the biggest factory. The French have the biggest fighting air fleet. We have hopes.

For many years he was an official in the original Marion Gas Co., and from 1899 to about 1905 served as postmaster of Marion. His brother, Charles C. Fisher, Marion attorney, lives at 402 Mt. Vernon av.

Infirmities of age caused Mr. Fisher's death.

He was born Oct. 20, 1843, in this city to Dr. Timothy Bruen Fisher, native of Franklin county, and Elenora P. Bennett-Fisher, native of Delaware county. His father was one of the pioneers of Marion's history.

On Nov. 26, 1874, in Franklin county, he was married to Miss Jennie Alice Phelps. Two of their four children are alive. They are Miss Jessie Fisher, at home in Columbus, and Mrs. Clara F. BREAKS GANG CODE TO REVEAL SLAYERS

Dying Gunman Breaks Law of Silence for First Time in History

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—Gangland's code of silence was violated for the first time in the history of Chicago crime today when Johnny Genaro, gunman and hoodlum, in a dying gasp named James Belcastro, indicted bomber and racketeer, as the man who "put him on the spot" here last night.

Genaro also named Louis De Lucca and Angelo Lucci as the two men who riddled his body with bullets.

Genaro, after the shooting, staggered to a hospital and collapsed. Physicians gave him only a few hours to live.

Heretofore, the code of gangland called for no one to ever name an attacker. This code baffled police in their attempts to solve hundreds of gang murders.

One police official said today: "It is better that Genaro dies; by naming his slayers he sealed his death warrant."

Man Confesses to Slaying Wealthy Recluse at Denver

DENVER, Jan. 30—After 10 hours of grilling, William Moya, 32, today confessed to the murder of Joseph Zemp, wealthy recluse whose body was found at the rear of his home here yesterday, police announced. They said Moya beat Zemp with a shoe last, fracturing his skull and afterward hid the body in an outhouse.

"I robbed the old man when he went away 10 days ago," Moya related, according to police. "When he came back, he found I had opened his strong box and we quarreled. I killed him and took $5 from his pockets."

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30—Complementing the annual Cleveland automobile show now in progress here, members of the Ohio Association of Commercial Haulers met today to conduct business sessions and discuss automotive conditions throughout the nation.

WOMAN IS HIT BY ERIE TRAIN

11-Year-Old Delnore Ault Coasts in Front of Automobile

SKULLS FRACTURED

Mrs. Otto Hart, 21, Steps into Path of Engine at Kenton Av.

Two persons were in critical condition today at City hospital following accidents in opposite sections of the city last night and this morning. Both victims have fractured skulls.

Mrs. Otto Hart, 21, 194 Edwards st., through some mysterious cause walked into the path of an Erie train at the Kenton av. crossing shortly before noon today. Delnore Ault, 11, of 304 Forest st., sustained a fractured skull when his sled coasted into the path of an automobile at Forest st. and Mt. Vernon av. last night.

Little hope was expressed for recovery of either of the accident victims today.

Mystery Accident

Mystery surrounds the probably fatal injury of Mrs. Hart, who walked in front of Erie train No. 3 at the Kenton av. crossing at 11:40 o'clock today noon. Whether she failed to sense the approaching train or for some unknown reason attempted to end her own life could not be determined. The latter reason is not probable, as relatives could produce no possible motives which would lead her to attempt suicide.

Hospital officials today had little hope for recovery. Her skull was fractured when she was struck by the slowly moving train, which had just left Union station and had not gathered speed.

According to Mrs. John Kitchen, who was staying with the Hart family, Mrs. Hart left the house a few moments before the accident with Charles Morris, Kirkpatrick, a hay baller, who worked with Mr. Hart. Mrs. Hart was bound for a grocery store on Center st., and parted company with Morris a few steps before walking into the path of the train.

Morris had taken lunch with the Hart family, and accompanied her only as far as the tracks, where he left for another store.

Mrs. Hart was rushed in the Schaffner-Queen Co. ambulance to City hospital, where her condition was pronounced critical. Dr. A. A. Starner attended her.

Coasting on the streets of Marion claimed its first victim last night when Delnore Ault, 11, of 304 Forest st., sustained a fractured skull and fractured arm in an accident on Forest st., just north of the Mt. Vernon av. intersection.

Delnore, a student in the sixth grade at Greenwood Street school, was coasting with a "gang" of his schoolmates and friends, and having the time of his life.

Warning Sounded

Marion Lawrence, of 414 Forest st., driving a Cadillac sedan north on Forest st., saw the boys and sounded the horn for them to clear the street. All the boys except Delnore ran to the right side of the street, but he was coasting on his sled in "bellyslap" fashion and turned to the left.

Mr. Lawrence drove his car over the curb to avoid hitting the boy, but the right side of the car hit the sled. The driver of the car rushed to the hospital with the boy, and this morning reports from the hospital said that he had a small chance to live.

The fracture was at the base of the skull. There was also a deep gash across his head. Friends of the boys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ault, said this morning that Mr. Lawrence had been exonerated of all blame.

FLIGHT POSTPONED

LAKEHURST, N. J., Jan. 30—High winds and snow flurries today forced postponement of the planned glider flight from the naval dirigible Los Angeles. When weather conditions improve the attempt, the first of its kind, will be made. The glider is to be lifted 2,000 feet into the air by the dirigible and then released. Lieut. Ralph S. Barnaby will guide the motorless craft on its downward swoop.

CONTEMPTIBLE!

Another thief walked away with a pet canary and cage from another residence, according to a report to police.

PRIMATE OF CHURCH DIES

Heart Attack Fatal to Charles P. Anderson, Episcopal Bishop

ILL SINCE JAN. 21

Hailed as One of America's Greatest Preachers, Religious Leaders

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—Bishop Charles P. Anderson, primate of the Episcopal church in the United States, died here today following a heart attack several days ago.

Bishop Anderson was stricken Jan. 21 and had been confined to his bed since. For the past decade he had been hailed as one of the greatest preacers in America and one of the outstanding figures in his church to which he was elected presiding bishop last November.

Bishop Anderson was born in Kemptville, Canada, Sept. 8, 1864, and was educated at Trinity school, Port Hope, Ontario, and Trinity university, Toronto, where he received his degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1900.

He married Miss Janet Glass of Belleville, Ont., in 1889. In 1887 he was made a deacon and the following year a rector. He was consecrated bishop of Chicago in 1900.

The bishop had been in delicate health since a year ago when a physician ordered him to Florida for a rest.

Evidence of his success in church circles is seen in the construction of more than 50 new churches and 50 rectories in Chicago.

Throughout his life Bishop Anderson was a strong opponent in bringing politics into the church. He denounced the dual standard of morality and strove constantly for world peace and unity of the church.

He is survived by his widow and four daughters.

U. S. DELEGATES SCORE VICTORY

Adopt American Contention That Cruisers Should Be Given First Consideration

PLAN WAS OPPOSED

Private Negotiatinos Following Plenary Session Result in Concession

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 30—The American delegation to the five-power naval disarmament conference scored a signal victory today when private negotiations between the chief delegates resulted in adoption of the American contention that cruisers should be first considered when the parley actually gets down to work.

From the start, the Americans have held out for premier consideration for the cruiser problem, but some of the other powers, particularly France and Italy, strenuously opposed this procedure.

The private negotiations which resulted in this outstanding concession to the American principles followed a plenary session of the conference at St. James' palace, during which the American delegates had pretty much the "right of way" from start to finish.

The delegates agreed that when actual consideration is given to the various categories of worships, cruisers will be discussed first, then submarines, destroyers and battleships in the order named.

The old controversy between France and Great Britain as to whether naval limitation should be effected on the thesis of global tonnage or by categories was thrown on the table at the first fully open plenary session of the London naval arms conference today.

It was discussed by the spokesmen of all five powers at the conference save Japan. Then on the motion of Secretary of State Stimson, it was referred to steering committee which will consider the question.

Although it has not been decided definitely, the committee probably will consist of two delegates from each

DAWES, SENATORS ARE "CALLED DOWN"

LONDON, Jan. 30—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and Senators Joseph T. Robinson and David A. Reed were "called down" today by a British foreign office official at St. James' palace for talking too loud.

During the translation of Premier Andre Tardieu's speech before the plenary session in Queen Anne's drawing room, the three American delegates remained in an adjoining chamber with newspapermen. They spoke so loudly the official was forced to ask them politely to lower their voices in order that journalists who had work to do could hear the translation coming over a loud speaker in the room.

BILL TRANSFERRING CONTROL IS OKAYED

Measure Is Reported to House by Committee; Recommends Passage

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—The administration bill transferring prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the department of justice was formally presented to the house today.

In reporting the measure out, the committee on executive expenditures recommended its enactment.

Under the provisions of this legislation, Attorney General W. D. Mitchell will become the dry czar of America. All of the enforcement machinery, which for the last 10 years has been controlled by the treasury, will be turned over to his department intact.

Pastor Shoots Church Janitor, Wife and Himself; Gossiping is Blamed

MENDOTA, Ill., Jan. 30—Gossiping among his flock were blamed today for an argument last night which ended when the Rev. J. A. Wilson shot his church janitor and the janitor's wife, according to police, and then turned the gun on himself.

All three were taken to the hospital with serious wounds.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, went to the home of his janitor, Amos Elliott, and demanded a letter which he said caused the gossip according to police.

The letter was understood to have been written by the minister to a widow who is a member of the church. Although the letter itself was innocent the pastor thought Elliott as using it to defame him.

Elliott surrendered the letter, then attempted to take it back by force, according to police. Drawing a revolver Wilson shot his janitor below the heart and turned the gun on Mrs. Elliott, wounding her in the chest, according to authorities.

The minister then hurried home and tried to commit suicide. He fired five shots at his head, three of them grazing his scalp and the other two penetrating the skull.

SNOW CHASES HOOVER

Six Inches of Beautiful White Sends Medicine Ballers Indoors

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Six inches of snow on the ground and the flakes still falling in the heaviest snowstorm that has descended over the capital for years, President Hoover decided to hold his 7 a. m. session with his "medicine ball cabinet" indoors. They played in an improvised court in one of the White House corridors.

Snowplows, in operation all night, were still going strong today as the storm showed no signs of abating.

Three Unmasked Bandits Escape After Getting $7,000 at Bettsville

DRIVE TOWARD FOSTORIA

Surprise Employes of Concern Shortly After Institution Opens

TIFFIN, Jan. 30—Three unmasked bandits held up the Bettsville Banking Co. at Bettsville, northwest of here, and escaped with approximately $7,000 in loot today, shortly after the bank had opened its doors.

Two of the bandits, armed with revolvers, entered the rear door, and held up the two employes, H. W. Davidson, cashier, and Miss Lulu Koester, bookkeeper while the third member of the trio was on guard in an automobile which they had parked in the rear of the bank.

Miss Koester and Davidson were compelled to lie on the floor while the bandits ransacked the safe and cash drawers. There were no customers in the bank at the time of the robbery.

The automobile bore an Indiana license, Davidson said. The bandit trio headed for Fostoria, it is believed. Police of all nearby towns were notified and a dragnet was spread over northwestern Ohio in an effort to apprehend the robbers.

OWENS PLANTS IN EXPANSION

Road Roller and Diesel Engine Latest Additions to Local Industries

NEW COMPANY FORMED

Hercules Co., Subsidiary of Osgood, To Make Road Machinery

The ever-growing list of Marion-made products has made another increase, according to an announcement made today by C. A. Owens, head of several local industrial plants.

The two new products are a road roller and a new type vertical two-cylinder Diesel oil burning engine. The Owens plants will go into production on both machines immediately, it was stated today.

Various Owens interests will unite in building the road roller while the Diesel engine will be manufactured by the Power Manufacturing Co. At the same time Owens announced the production of the two new machines he announced the incorporation of the Hercules Co. This company has been organized as a subsidiary to the Osgood Co., the Owens parent plant, for the promotion of sales of the road rollers. The roller will be known as the Hercules road roller.

List of Incorporators

The Hercules Co., has 1,000 shares of no par value stock. The incorporators are C. A. Owens, H. J. Barnhart, F. D. Glosser, and J. P. Thatcher.

The development of the two new products marks another step in the growth of the Owens' interests in Marion. Included in the companies now controlled by C. A. Owens are the Osgood Co., the General Excavator Co., the Commercial Steel Casting Co., the Alloy Cast Steel Co., the Power Manufacturing Co., and the Hercules Co.

The Hercules roller has had its first showing, and according to its makers met with instant approval. The roller was one of the Osgood displays at the National road show held two weeks ago in Atlantic City.

Owens stated today that 34 distributors for the new roller were signed at the road show. All of them placed orders for from two to four rollers, thus placing on the books of the company orders for approximately 100 machines. Mr. Owens stated today that he expects to build a minimum of 300 rollers this year.

All-Steel Construction

The roller is of all-steel construction and will consume many tons of castings which will be made in the Owens plants. The production of the roller is expected to aid in keeping the various plants running full time.

The roller will be powered by a six-cylinder engine. It has three forward and three reverse speeds with instant control through improved clutching devices. All gears run in oil. It will be built in 10 and 12 ton sizes.

The Diesel engine, according to Owens, has passed the rigid tests through which it was put in the testing rooms of the Power Manufacturing Co. For 24 days and 24 hours a day the engine was put through a grueling test, Owens stated today that they tried to break the engine in the test. At times its load was in

YOUNG "GUN FIEND" WILL BE ARRAIGNED

Has Confessed To Shooting Two; Seek To Link Him to Killing

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30—Edward W. Ralph, 18, confessed "gun fiend" who admitted the shooting of two young women here last month, was to be arraigned in police court today on a charge of shooting with intent to kill.

The youth confessed, according to police, that he shot Miss Beatrice Gallagher and Mrs. Mary Pshock after they had repulsed his advances when accosted on the street. Ralph persistently denies, however, that he was the "masher" who shot and fatally wounded Miss Janet Flood, 16-year-old high school student.

The gun used by Ralph in his attacks was found yesterday and ballistic experts were to compare photographs of test bullets fired from the pistol with those taken from the two victim's bodies. Bullets extracted from Miss Blood's body will also be compared to determine whether or not Ralph was the murderer of the high school student.

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

It brought back my strength. Today I can do anything, thanks to the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. William Parent.

A clear, smooth, lovely skin enhances personal attractiveness. Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. More happiness and friends may depend upon it.

YOUR popularity may depend upon a clear, smooth, lovely skin. It is the accepted way of telling the degree of health a person possesses. Naturally a skin which bespeaks health attracts.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin blemishes, lack of appetite, flabby flesh and loss of energy as an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and promotes smooth, clear skin.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to infection and disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh and clearing the skin.

S.S.S. promotes healthy body building. It increases the number of red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Don't fool yourself

Halitosis (unpleasant breath) is a barrier to friendship, affection and business progress.

So many every day conditions cause it that no one is entirely free of it. And since you cannot tell when you have it—and your friends won't tell—the one way of putting yourself on the safe side is to use Listerine as a mouth wash 3 times a day. Keep a bottle handy at home and office.

'The Secret Trail' A Fascinating Mystery Story

SCOTLAND YARD GOES OUT AFTER ITS MAN

BY ANTHONY ARMSTRONG

CHAPTER 20

"C[illegible] er, Sam," he said, as coolly [illegible] could. "Put that gun up [illegible] this. There's no sense in [illegible] midation. You can't get [illegible] want here!"

[illegible] He had grown a [illegible] and otherwise altered his [illegible] but he looked as coarsely [illegible] ever.

"[illegible] more than I expected al- [illegible] didn't expect you and I owe [illegible]," he added fiercely. [illegible] you something. So [illegible] and you clear out."

Sam [illegible] derisively, and all at [illegible] read his death in the [illegible] death for the enemy who [illegible] He almost cowered [illegible]

"[illegible] more than money or even [illegible] make it quits between you [illegible] Rezaire! I got something [illegible] been waiting for you a long [illegible] slapped his thigh, where [illegible] well lay the keen, evil [illegible] which was Sam's favor- [illegible]

[illegible] forehead was wet with [illegible] tried a last desperate [illegible]

"[illegible]," he said. "You won't [illegible] away [illegible] here. Don't you know [illegible] you off? They're waiting [illegible]."

"Liar!"

"You never did believe anything till you saw it, yet it's true."

"I wouldn't believe what you told [illegible] Sam, but under the [illegible] Jimmie now detected a little [illegible] doubt. At once his fear [illegible] to vanish. A plan rapidly [illegible]. He knew that the bone-headed Sam could always be worsted in an encounter of wits.

"Look for yourself!" he said. "There's one 'busy' in a gray hat directly opposite, watching your car; there are two at the back and one in the hall below. You can see the [illegible] opposite from the window, if you don't believe me."

Fearful of Trickery

Sam wavered. "Are you putting something across me?" he growled [illegible]. He took two steps to the window, then whirled round as if to catch Jimmie at some trick. But Rezaire had not moved a muscle.

"Go over to the far side of the room, face the wall and put your hands up," commanded Sam.

"What a lot of trouble to convince a [illegible] man!" sighed Jimmie, whose [illegible] had now risen. "Why don't you take my word?"

"[illegible] quick," countered Sam. Jimmie obeyed resignedly.

"Shall I turn when I've counted a [illegible]?" he asked. "Or will you [illegible] when you're hidden?"

"You dare turn and I'll plug you," [illegible] Sam, then with four quick [illegible] he had backed up to the window, his revolver still trained on Jimmie.

He turned his head over his shoulder to search the road, and as his [illegible] left his gun, a hand shot out [illegible] the curtain at his side and [illegible] plucked it from his grasp.

"No, you don't, old love!" said Hyslop sweetly. Sam reaching for his [illegible], found himself studying the business end of his own revolver.

"All right, H. H.?" asked Jimmie, still face to the wall.

"All quiet on the Western front," said Hyslop coming out into the room.

"Tut, tut!" he added as Sam let fly a string of obscenity on fully realizing how he had been tricked.

Jimmie ran to Viv, who though now conscious again, was still lying where she had been dropped, looking very white.

"How are you feeling, Viv?" asked Rezaire anxiously, lifting her to a chair. She seemed very soft and fragile, quite unlike the clever self-reliant girl he knew so well.

"I shall be all right in a minute. Jimmie, you are a dear," she whispered. She made as if to put her arms impulsively round his neck as he bent over her, then changed her mind. "Thank you so much," she concluded quietly.

"Nothing at all," muttered Jimmie.

"Never mind. I love you for it," she added lightly, looking up at him.

Jimmie stammered a moment and then asked abruptly: "What are we to do with Sam?"

At mention of his name Sam cursed Jimmie again, till Hyslop grimly forced him into a corner.

"Naughty! Naughty!" he said reproachfully. "If you use words like that, my little man, you'll * * *"

"Oh, go to hell!"

"Well, if ou haven't finished my sentence perfectly!" retorted Hyslop admiringly.

Sam Is Released

At the end of ten minutes' whispered conversation Sam's future had been decided upon. Jimmie, whose fear of his enemy was only increased by the knowledge that he had worsted him once more, had even, against his earlier inclination, desired to hand him over to the police, but both Viv and Hyslop argued very strongly against it. They pointed out, speaking in whispers, that at this critical juncture of their own affair, they could not run the risk of being involved with Scotland Yard.

"You see, you're all right, Jimmie," said Viv, "but up to recently H. H. and I were working the shops, and I think Sam may have a line on us.

"At any rate it'd probably mean our being watched, just when we want to be free."

Jimmie had at last reluctantly agreed to letting Sam go, under promise that he let them alone and went straight back to the States. If he stayed in London or if he tried to interfere again, they would tip him off to the police.

"And you know what that means," said Jimmie to him significantly, as Sam stood at the door glowering. "The 9 o'clock walk for you with a nice bit of hemp at the end of it."

Sam only growled.

"And it's no good trying to get back on me, because I've done my stretch and I'm running straight. Now, get!"

"Good-by, baby," added Hyslop sweetly.

As he went Sam turned and snarled: "By God, Rezaire, I'll get you for this some time."

"Not in this country," bluffed Jimmie swiftly. "In case of an accident I'm leaving a note for the police to say you did it."

From the window all three watched Sam sullenly cross the road to a waiting car.

"I wish to the devil," muttered Jimmie fretfully, "we'd done something else."

"He'll go back all right," said Viv reassuringly. "I know Sam."

"Yes. But he may have a last shot at me first. Thank God he doesn't know where I hang out."

After a Passport

After talking their future plans over with Viv, Jimmie and Hyslop left very discreetly, Jimmie carefully turning on his tracks several times in case he had been picked up on leaving Shrewsbury Mansions by any friend of Sam's.

Arriving at last in a public call box in Piccadilly, he 'phoned to Gullidge. He wanted to get in touch with "Captain Smith" about a passport, so that, in the event of failure at Victoria on the morrow, he could go over to Paris for one last attempt.

Inspector Gullidge was frankly offensive about the previous night's effort, when a body of police had been kept standing by at a police station, only to receive Viv's message that they were not wanted.

"And how many constables will you want today, Mister Rezaire?" was the gist of his sarcasm, and it made Jimmie more than ever determined to lay the spies by the heels without any official assistance.

From "Captain Smith" he extracted a reluctant promise that a passport for France would be ready for him at Scotland Yard that afternoon. "Captain Smith" was skeptical about France, doubtful now about the wisdom of ever having let Rezaire into the game.

He again intimated that he had his own ideas on how and where the Murchison sighter was going to leave England, and this time Jimmie was careful not to mention the East coast or to say anything to shake his confidence.

After telephoning, he embarked, with Hyslop's help, upon some preparatory arrangements. He paid his bill at the Grand Cross and got his effects taken away secretly from the hotel which now he no longer considered safe. Some he dispatched circuitously to the Vine, others to Viv's flat. He also had a specially packed suitcase deposited ready in Victoria station cloakroom; for some intuition told him that he might need to go to Paris in a hurry before he had seen this matter through.

An Unexpected Meeting

Hyslop then went off to get in touch with Mario as prearranged, and after that to go to Shrewsbury Mansions and lie low. Though Jimmie intended to sleep that night in the obscurity of the Vine in order to be safe from Sam, Viv's flat was to be their headquarters for the next few hours up to what he hoped would be their final coup at Victoria station. In the middle of the crowd there, Jimmie felt no doubt that he and Hyslop, posing as detectives, would be able to hold up the innocent-looking spies, who, up till that moment, would be secure in the assumption that no one could possibly know their plans.

After parting from his companion, Jimmie went down to an obscure restaurant in West Kensington to get his lunch. On the way back he changed his bus twice almost as soon as he had boarded it, and in other ways covered his tracks. He was feeling decidedly jumpy; for by now it was certain that No. 1 knew that he had not arrived safely at the Gables, in which case it was highly probable that suspicion had been really roused at last.

To his relief he saw no one in the least doubtful, and so came at last to Whitehall, where he received his passport from an uncommunicative and suspicious-looking official. He then walked down Whitehall and along to Piccadilly Circus. Deep in thought he found he had passed Shaftesbury avenue. When, turning to retrace his steps, he gave a start of surprise. Coming toward him was no less a person than Monsieur Villon, the stout proprietor of the Coin de Paradis restaurant.

Love's Reawakening The Story of a Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Philip Veritzen Offers Mary a Fortune to Give Up Noel

I TOOK the letter which Mary thrust into my hand as if it were any ordinary epistle, but my mental motor was racing with the query as to whether this letter was the one of which Katherine had told me, the one, which delivered to Mary at the same time Noel received a similar one, had so markedly upset both young people.

"You're sure I ought to read this, Mary," I said as I held the folded paper in my hands with my eyes carefully averted from it.

"It's written to me," she retorted, a bit defiantly, "and though I suppose the old goat didn't mean me to show it around, I have the right to do anything I want with it. I wish I could put it in the paper and just show him up for the old hyena he is."

A little premonition as to the writer of the letter I held swept over me at her words, and as I opened it I knew that my presentiment was right. I knew that copper-plate calligraphy, for I had seen it many times.

"Philip Veritzen?" I ejaculated.

"The same, and I hope he's choking to death somewhere," Mary returned vindictively, but I did not reprove her, for I felt a secret sympathy with the rancor behind her wish. And it was with rapidly mounting anger that I read the screed she had given me.

There was no heading save the date of a few days before, and the salutation was that of the most formal business letter, ending "My dear Miss Harrison:"

"Punctilious old lad, isn't he?" Mary grinned sardonically as I looked up involuntarily. "I suppose it he called me Mary he'd be afraid I'd sue him for breach of promise or something."

I smiled mechanically but my eyes were busy with the astonishing text of the letter.

The Erased Words

"Before I left New York," the letter began, "I exhausted all appeals to your better nature, and gave up all hope of inducing you to give up the fantastic idea you have of marrying my son. My appeals to my son also failed and I left the city, as you know. But you do not know that I never intended to return.

"I have since reconsidered that determination. I do not propose to have my future life changed because of the ridiculous whim of a foolish boy and the determination of a—wilful girl."

I held the letter closer to my eyes. Before the last three words other words had been begun and crossed out. But they were still faintly decipherable. Philip Vertizen had strted to write "an unscrupulous woman," and then had changed the phrase. But I was sure that he had left the words purposely instead of rewriting the sheet.

Mary pulled down the letter and pointed to the words.

"Oh! I got the full flavor of it all right," she said bitterly. "Isn't he the sweetest old thing?"

"I haven't words to express my anger at him, Mary", I said, and meant it.

"You won't even have a syllable by the time you get through," she prophesied as I took up the letter again.

The $100,000 Bribe

"I am now appealing to your ambition, which, I believe from careful observation of you, is the mainspring of your being. There is no use in mincing words. If you will agree to break your engagement with my son, Noel, so decisively that he never will seek to renew it, I shall put to your credit one hundred thousand dollars, and I shall also renew my old promise to make of you the most famous Veritzen dramatic star. But you must make Noel believe that you are throwing him over because you have ceased to care for him, and because you care for someone else."

I caught my breath as I read this precious paragraph, and Mary laughed again a sound far more bitter than a sob.

"Splendid opinion he has of me, hasn't he?" she commented.

"His opinion of you should not matter to you, or to anyone who loves you," I told her soberly, and went back to my reading.

"I believe that this offer will appeal to you," the letter went on. "But if by any chance you should be as fantastically emotional as my son, let me show you the contrast between what my son will receive if he obeys me, or if he marries you.

I am a far richer man than you dream. If Noel comes back to me on my terms, he will be my sole heir. At once I shall settle a princely income upon him. His days of worry will be over. His future will be assured as I have news—but enough of that. Look on the other side of the picture. If he marries you, he has nothing but privation ahead of him. He does not know that I can control his mother's patrimony for a much longer period than he thinks now. I also have enough influence to see that his 'career' save the mark! in New York is zero for the future.

"Think all these things over and prepare to answer me when I shall next communicate with you."

Jubilee's Pardner

* * *

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TOMORROW will be Friday, and then we won't have any more school till next month. And me and Jubilee don't care at all. When I let him down by his rope it had got cold, and the whole world was froze again, but there was not any new snow, but all the snow that had melted and been standing around in water was as hard as a rock, and all the dirt that stuck up through it was hard and nubbly, so that when I run and slid on a puddle and my toe hit a nub of dirt I fell down and scratched the palm of one of my hands till it bled, and my mother put that red medicine on it, so that no germs would get into it. I would hate to be as mean as a germ, always looking for places to get into and make trouble.

After I had got my milking and everything done and there wasn't anything left to do but to go to school we all took our skates and went down to the pond, and most of the snow had melted and froze again so that the pond was glairy. We had a good time, all except Mealy Gutwaltz, who stood on the top of the hill like she always does, like she was trying to see how long it would take her to freeze to death, and the Lost Bag of Tripe who was late coming to the pond came along and pushed his foot against her feet and they went out from under her like she had been standing on the inside of a bacon rine. The way she came down with no snow under her must of almost busted her, but she swang one arm around as she fell and caught hold of the Lost Bag's of Tripe's ankle and they both slid half way down the hill together fighting each other like cats that had been tied together.

When I got home from school Feeble and Younis and Maggie came along to go for another skate and Miss Parmer was there with her skates, and it was so cold she had on a man's overcoat and hat, and Feeble said to let's fool my father when he came home. So Feeble borrowed my mother's coat and hat and pulled the hat down over her head tight, and when it was time for my father to come they went out to the gate and Feeble stood on the inside and Miss Parmer with her lace boots and britches and overcoat and hat on the outside, and when my father came along in the early dusk they made out like they didn't see him, and began to hug and kiss. First he kinda stepped, and then he took two or three quick steps and gave Miss Parmer a kick that lifted her up in the air and made her holler and put both her hands behind her, and then he saw Feeble's face, and turned around with his mouth open and saw it was Miss Parmer, and he looked like he had been punctured. He was offal sorry. So was Miss Parmer. She said the joke was on her. It was all Feeble's fault.

Don't let debts get rusty. They are harder to pay.

Pile Agony Ended Without Cutting

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds the cause. It relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. CONGRESS TO PROBE BANKING OF CHAINS

Revision of National Laws May Be Considered Before End of Session

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—The legislative path was cleared today for a sweeping congressional inquiry into chain and branch banking, with prospect of a revision of the national banking laws being considered before the end of the present session.

Rep. Louis T. McFadden, Republican, of Pennsylvania, announced that the house banking committee has reached an agreement with the treasury and the federal reserve board under which they will cooperate with the committee in the investigation.

The house committee will formally request that experts be assigned to aid it in making its inquiry and drafting legislation. The committee docket is to be cleared of virtually all other business, and members relieved of the necessity of attending house sessions.

With the treasury recommending that the national banking laws be liberalized to permit further extension of branch banking by national banks many militant members of congress have announced that they in turn will seek repeal of the McFadden act which permitted limited branch banking.

Congress already has been warned by treasury officials that unless the national bank laws are liberalized, the banking resources of the country will soon be mobilized in chains formed to evade laws.

Headquarters Will Be Transferred to Ohio's Capital Next Saturday

COLUMBUS, Jan. 30—Ohio's capital may be the aviation center of the central states, it was indicated here today following an announcement of T. A. T.-Maddux Air Lines officials that the company's headquarters will be moved to Columbus.

The eastern division's operation offices have consolidated and the move will be effective Saturday, the officials announced. The traffic offices of the eastern division will remain at St. Louis, under the direction of J. W. Brennan, it was stated.

St. Clair D. Welsh, former eastern division superintendent, will be in charge of the offices here to succeed John A. Collings, who recently announced his resignation.

The change will be made as an economy measure as a result of the recent reductions in fares on the passenger air line, it was said.

The action was decided upon at a meeting of the board of directors when J. L. Maddux, organizer and president of the Maddux Lines, was elected to head the T. A. T.-Maddux line merger.

Men Blown to Bits in Nitroglycerin Blast at Torpedo Storage Plant

FINDLAY, Jan. 30—An investigation was launched here today by officials of the Independent-Eastern Torpedo Co. to determine the cause of a nitroglycerin explosion in a storage plant, which killed two employes.

S. Williams Laswell, 38, and Curtis C. Copus, were blown to bits by the explosion, which occurred on the company's property near here late yesterday.

The two men were riding in a truck to the storage plant and a small piece of the gearing was all that remained of the vehicle.

The heat which was caused by the blast, melted the snow within a radius of one acre, shattered windows in nearby farm buildings and rocked houses in Findlay. Pieces of the wrecked storage plant were found 800 feet away.

INDIANA ICE GORGE SPREADING WATERS

Relief Agencies Attempt To Battle Advance of Most Alarming Flood

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 30—With only the roofs of farmhouses showing above the flood waters in many sections of Posey county, relief forces today attempted to battle the advance of the most alarming flood of Indiana's history.

Ice gorges in the Wabash river are causing the flood waters to spread with unprecedented rapidity across the lowlands south of New Harmony, Ind.

Sections of Illinois also are fighting the water's advance.

No complete estimate of the sickness, suffering and damage is available, but aviators carrying food to the territory report the ice-laden waters have already covered a section 15 miles wide.

Near New Harmony 18 families are marooned without food and with little shelter. Ten persons are isolated in a house on Ribeyre island in the Wabash. These, together with a score of sufferers on Cutoff islands were given food yesterday by aviators who dropped supplies in small parachutes.

Stories brought here by residents who escaped the flood tide indicated that barns and homes are filled with ice. Farm animals have been frozen in their stalls and have had no feed for days.

Many residents are believed to have died in their homes from starvation and exposure, but Red Cross workers are unable to reach the more remote places because of treacherous ice fields and strong currents.

You can put anything over with loud cheering—except a reduction of taxes.

Heals Eczema In 7 Days or Less

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by druggists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin disease than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds, but boils, abscesses and ulcers are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action is little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped: the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barbers' itch, salt rheum and other irritating and unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) in the original bottle at Bradley's Drug Store or any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is rare indeed—Adv.

Just the usual Ohio Winter . . .

. . . and it's mighty tough on motor oil . . .

But never in winters past have you had a motor oil made especially to meet these swirling weather changes . . .

New SOHIO MOTOR OIL
free from harmful wax

Expect These Results With New Sohio Motor Oil In Your Crankcase:
Easier starting—less drain on battery.
▼
Less need for slow warming up.
▼
Full, smooth power—unfailing piston seal.
▼
Reduced carbon formation.
Less wear on moving parts.

MONDAY'S cold—Tuesday's not—Wednesday's chilly—Thursday's hot! And so it goes right through the winter. No wonder ordinary motor oils find life difficult in Ohio. No wonder New Sohio Motor Oil has gained such success during its first season. It was developed especially to meet Ohio's punishing weather changes.

New Sohio doesn't grow sluggish when the weather grows cold—doesn't lose its body when the thermometer rises. Cold motors spin easily and under intense heat at high speeds there's no breaking of that vital protecting film between moving parts.

This unusual flexibility and sturdiness has been given New Sohio Motor Oil by a newly developed refining process which frees it from harmful wax to a degree never before thought possible. First it is chilled to 50° below zero. Then the harmful wax content is whirled away. The result: an oilier oil—smoother—longer lasting—ready to meet Ohio's severest weather changes better than they've ever been met before.

Yet with all its extra quality New Sohio Motor Oil costs only 30c per quart.

Listen to the Sohioans every Tuesday Evening at 7:30 P. M. . . . WTAM

Ballyhoo on "International Boxing Contest" Opens at Miami With Ban

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—With a vim and verve that portends results in a big way, the ballyhoo of the "international boxing contest" between Jack Sharkey of the U. S. A. and Phil Scott of England at Miami, Fla., on the night of Feb. 27 has begun—officially. And what a bizarre, colorful ballyhoo it will be!

They're off, already. Sharkey has begun to train, and Scott has arrived at Miami. He almost fainted when he was met by a brass band. But Phil is subject to weak spells. Twenty-three sports writers—the advance battery—have dug in at newspaper headquarters at the Dade hotel and the opening salvos of the ballyhoo are trickling to all corners of the globe.

$400,000 Gate

"A $400,000 gate sure," is their prediction. Frank Bruen, the suave, dark, smiling general manager of Madison Square Garden, who is down there laying the groundwork for the affair, announced that seats will range in price from $5 to $25. The Miami stadium will seat 50,200 persons.

A band of 22, comprising the Miami Kilties, was at the station to welcome the visiting correspondents who will play a major part in the grand ballyhoo. The scribes were greeted by Mayor Clifford H. Reeder of Miami and paraded around the city in motor cars. On with the show!

Mr. Sharkey, who lends himself well to the whoopla of the ballyhoo, again selected the "dog track" as his training quarters. It was in this bizarre place, where the greyhounds run nightly, that the Boston sailor worked out last February for his bout with Young Stribling. By picking the "dog track" as the spot to strut his stuff Sharkey injects one more bit of color into the proceedings. For, somehow, the "dog track" provides a certain appeal to the imagination. More so, anyway than Glutz's gymnasium or the Eagle's hall.

To Get Monocle

Scott will work out at the American Legion arena at Miami Beach and also at fashionable Palm Beach. Mr. Scott was minus monocle and cane when he arrived last night in Miami but he will have white panties, eye protector and stick when he invades Palm Beach if his manager, the imaginative Jimmy Johnston, than whom there is no more finished ballyhooer, has his way about it. Mr. Johnston insists that Tony Biddle and others in society at Palm Beach are just dying to have Phil work out there.

Sharkey began training after three weeks of lounging on the sands of Miami Beach. With the fight only four weeks away it became expedient to launch the ballyhoo. He jarred the heavy bag loose from its moorings with a left hook which was believed to indicate something—probably that the bag was not put up right. He weighs 201 pounds, five pounds over his fighting weight. Scott weighs 21 five pounds overweight.

The ballyhoo will gain mo from now on and within a unless all signs are wrong, it wi eclipsed the Sharkey-Stribling hoo of a year ago when it was a zenith—even though this year conspicuously absent will inclu Capone and Jack Dempsey.

ALL-AMERICANS THE BUNK, CROWLEY SAYS

BY FRANK G. MENKE

REMEMBER the "Four Horsemen of Notre Dame?"

One of them was named Crowley.

He graduated in the usual course of events, became a coach and as time drifted along, he was asked one question—another—and so forth.

Eventually somebody asked him if he wouldn't, while making a speech at a banquet, say a few words concerning All-American football teams—that is, about the custom of selecting them.

"Sure," responded Crowley.

So up he stepped—and this is what he said:

"In these days all that a fellow has to do to become a candidate for an All-American eleven is to encounter a weak defense and make a lucky run while some inspired writer looks on—after which the writer will boom his praises through the nation."

The man's right!

Take Albie Booth of Yale as an example.

He went against Brown, a weak team, and ran amuck.

He repeated against Army which was not so coordinated that particular afternoon.

As a result, Booth, the midget, found himself the subject of about 1000 different stories—all dealing in superlatives—and the American nation was made to believe that here was somebody greater than Thorpe, Mahan, Heston, Gipp, Coy and 57 others.

But—but—but!

You know what transpired later.

Same Booth, with same Yale team, went up against teams that were stronger. And—well, let's draw the curtain.

GABBY HARTNETT'S arm is supposed to be okay again.

This is a source of great joy to the Cubs who pay him $18,000 annually for that arm.

It occasions greater joy within Hartnett—and relief, too.

"Yes, yes," beams Gabby, "relief—that's the regular word. Arm went bad last year. What was the matter? Well, this doctor thought one thing was the cause; another had a contrary notion. It was suggested I have my molars jerked out. My appendix pruned. I tried to explain that the trouble was in the arm and that I didn't throw with my tonsils, teeth or use the appendix for any purpose whatever.

"But the doctors—ah, those dear doctors. They were certain there was a hidden cause. They began sleuthing, and cutting—and still they didn't find the cause. 'But we will find the cause,' they always comforted. They did—in the intestines. And was I relieved? Whoopee! Imagine, if you can, what might have been left of me if they had sort of missed the intestines for a while longer and gone searching and slicing in a lot of other places.

"M'Gosh—but I'm relieved. Relieved of some of the things I had since birth but relieved, as I said before, that I was not relieved of any more."

Before his arm went bad, Hartnett was rated as the best catcher in the National league. His absence from the Cub lineup last season put the heavy burden upon Zach Taylor. With Hartnett back, the alternate with Taylor, the Cubs' backstopping worries for 1930 are over.

Bout Between Miller and Graham Is Declared Draw

CINCINNATI, Jan. 30—The bout here between Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, and Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., last night, was called a draw, according to the judges' decision.

The fans who witnessed the bout thought otherwise and vented their wrath with cat-calls and boos.

In the tenth round Graham had Miller in a bad way, sending him to the canvas three times under an avalanche of blows.

Denison Weakens in Last Half To Lose to Ohio 5

GRANVILLE, Jan. 30—Ohio University's quintet, today had added another win to its column of victories. The victim this time was the Denison five, which fought tooth and nail, during the first half to be on the short end of a 24-to-20 score.

The Athens squad in the last half showed its stuff and stepped high and handsome, taking the ball almost at will to swamp Denison 55-to-37.

Phil Edwards Defeats Conger in N. Y. Games

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—Phil Edwards' flying feet today had written a thrilling finish to his career at New York university.

He covered the distance in 14 4-5, a new armory track record. Jack Elder, the Notre Dame football ace, was defeated by Jimmy Pappas, former Princeton runner, now with the Newark A. C., in the 50 yard dash but Elder won the 60-yard and 70-yard sports decisively.

Williams, a veteran of 37, but as a matter of fact only eight months older than the Bambino, starred a few seasons back as a home run artist for the St. Louis Browns.

German Republic Remains Center of Royal Families

With Exception of Kaiser All Former Rulers of Country and Their Families Are Residing in Fatherland; Live in Old Palaces

BERLIN, Jan. 30—There are more royalties living in the republic of Germany than in any other country of the world.

With the only exception of the kaiser all former German rulers and their families are living quietly in the fatherland including those who voluntarily or involuntarily had left the country for some time. Thus the former crown prince, through the personal intervention of the late Foreign Minister Stresemann, came back from his dreary exile at Wieringen Island.

Frequently one can see the former heir to the throne at the wheel of his red Mercedes car driving through the Brandenburg gate. His permanent resident is Oels, Silesia, but the family spends a few months of the year at Cecilienhof, Potsdam.

Like English Cottage

Cecilienhof is quite different from the other magnificent eighteenth century castles of Potsdam. It was built only 21 years ago. Hidden in a large old park, it looks much more like a special English cottage conforming with the taste of then newly married couple. During their stay at Cecilienhof, the crown prince and crown princess always arrange for a number of dinner parties for their friends from Potsdam and Berlin.

The Crown Princess Active

The crown princess is devoting much of her time to social work. She is president of the ladies Red Cross league of Silesia. The crown prince, who has always been a keen sports man, never missing any notable sporting event. He travels a good deal, including Switzerland and Italy, and recently was said to have been seen enjoying Paris night life. But immediately a statement appeared saying that "he is not in Paris, never was in Paris and never intends to go there."

The crown prince's eldest son, Prince Wilhelm, is studying law and agriculture in Koenigsberg, East Prussia.

The second son, Dr. Prince Louis Ferdinand, got his degree at Berlin university and after touring the United States entered a commercial firm in Buenos Aires. His ambition is to become a merchant prince.

The other sons of the kaiser, Eitel-Friedrich, August Wilhelm and Oskar are living in the same rather unpretentious Potsdam houses they had before the war. The exception is Prince Adalbert, a former naval officer, who lives at Bad Homburg.

The only member of the Hohenzollern house who owns a regular residence in Berlin is Prince Friedrich Heinrich, one of the kaiser's cousins. He is a bachelor and usually lives at his country seat Kamienz, Silesia, but has a fine palace in the Wilhemstrasse. Curiously enough, the republican government had to rent it from the prince for royal guests, as the Reich has no proper quarters for such distinguished visitors, the old Imperial palace being turned into a museum. King Fuad, of Egypt and Amanullah of Afghanistan were the guests entertained there.

Gather At Seashore

In the summer time, Germany's oldest and most exclusive seaside resort on the Baltic, Heiligendamm, always sees a large gathering of royalty. The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg has two cottages there and his regular party includes his sister, the Crown Princess, the Duchess of Brunswick, the kaiser's only daughter, with their families and his brother, the Prince Consort of Holland.

King Friedrich August III, of Saxony is, besides the kaiser, the only ruler of the former four German kingdoms, Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony and Wurtemberg, who is still alive. His permanent residence is Sybillenort, Silesia, but he frequently comes to his fine castle Moritzburg near Dresden. He is still very popular and the hero of countless anecdotes, his drastic sayings in genuine Saxon dialect being known all over Germany.

Former Crown Prince George, his eldest son, studied philosophy and theology and is now a Jesuit father at Valkenburg, Holland.

The second son, Prince Friedrich Christian, married the only daughter of the Prince of Thurn and Taxis, and also lives at Sybillenort. The priceless art treasures, which were declared private property of the king by the settlement with the state of Saxony, are under the special care of Prince Ernst Heinrich, the youngest son. The "porcelain tower" at Moritzburg contains not the biggest, but perhaps the finest collection of Old Meissen china in the world.

Bavarion Rulers

Crown Prince Rupprecht, now the head of the Bavarion Royal family, was known during the World war as Commander-in-Chief of the German forces in Flanders. He lives at Berchtesgaden, on the finest spot of the Bavarion Alps, but often comes to his palace in Munich, which, however, for financial reasons, is partly rented to private people and firms.

The 85-year-old Field Marshall Prince Leopold, who suceeded Hindenburg as commander-in-chief on the German eastern front during the World war. With his wife, daughter of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, he lives in Munich.

Another member of the Wittelsbach family, Prince Ludwig Ferdinand, is practicing as a doctor and is besides a perfect cellist. He is honorary member of the Munich opera orchestra and takes part in the annual Wagner festivals, sitting among the orchestra playing his cello.

The last King of Wurtemberg, Wilhelm II., died soon after the revolution. His widow lives in the picturesque old Abbey of Bebenhausen.

Speculative Stocks Carried to Highest Prices of New Year

BULLISH POOLS AND TRADERS IN ACTION

General Electric Pushes to 71 for 10-Point Advance on Move

BUYING IS HEAVY

American Can Crosses 130, with Bethlehem and U. S. Steel Gaining

BY W. S. COUSINS
Marion Star Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Though [illegible] as in the last day [illegible] advance in prices on the [illegible] day carried a dozen or [illegible] speculative leaders to [illegible] prices since the turn of [illegible] powerful bullish traders [illegible] were in the market for [illegible] large volume of [illegible] States Steel, General Electric, [illegible] General Motors, [illegible] Central and other high [illegible] and their combined [illegible] easily turned the tide [illegible] values steadily upward.

[illegible] discouraging news and un[illegible] reports from the railroad [illegible] industries, the stocks of [illegible] companies shared in [illegible] upturn of the market. [illegible] were given a scare as indi[illegible] in which the bears have [illegible] entrenched darted forward on heavy trading. General [illegible] now selling in its new form, [illegible] four-for-one split-up, threatened severe punishment for the bears [illegible] pushed ahead to 71, up [illegible] points on the move. This is [illegible] to a 40 point rise in the [illegible] and equals some of the best [illegible] displayed by that [illegible] in the 1929 bull market.

Sears Roebuck had a running start [illegible] points when the stock opened [illegible] completing a recovery of 17 [illegible] its recent low. General Motors at the head of the automobile group advanced a point to 42, and [illegible] gains were made by a number of the specialties.

United States Steel was again a leader in the forward movement of the [illegible] industrials and sold above 180 for the first time this year. Union Carbide carried its new advance to [illegible] on heavy buying. New York Central was the king pin of the advance in the rails, and sold up two points at [illegible].

Favorable reports from the steel and automobile industries induced heavy buying of stocks of the leading companies in the second hour. Bethlehem Steel was a favorite reaching [illegible] for the first time since the crash. Vanadium Steel advanced a point to 69. Chrysler, Hudson, Nash and other well known automobile stocks [illegible] about a point higher. Westinghouse and General Electric made new excursions into higher territory and American Can crossed 130 for the first time this year, up about two points.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—Continued weakness in the world wheat market, featured by further offerings of grain from Russia increased the volume of future liquidation in the local market yesterday. Prices dropped sharply to new lows on the present turn and within a fraction of the crops' lowest level, reached in November.

Coarse grains and rye sold at new crop lows throughout the list. Corn however, showed a disposition to break away from the weakening influence of wheat and made fair recovery before the close.

A fractional rally resulted in wheat as shorts covered, but prices were 2⅛@2½c lower for the day. Corn was ¼@½c down; oats ¾@1⅝c lower; and rye 2¼@2½c off. Winnipeg wheat futures closed 3@3¼c lower, while Liverpool was 1⅛@1⅝c down.

For the first time since Russia has appeared in the export column this season, that country was said to be pressing wheat for sale, which accounted in a large measure for Liverpool's depression, cables indicated. Sales were made by Russia to Italy and Hamburg, estimated between 200,000 and 400,000 bu, and that country reported offering amounts to the United Kingdom, estimated as high as 400,000 bu.

This influence, plus a very dull demand for North American wheat despite breaking prices, caused further severe weakness at Winnipeg and that market again lost ground compared with Chicago. Hence local bearishness continued to grow and there was heavy liquidation through commission houses, with a large volume credited to eastern account.

Domestic export trade was flat, with no sales indicated. Co-operatives continue to puchase wheat at farm board prices in the Northwest, and 98 cars have been taken so far it is said. Weather conditions were generally favorable, though there is further talk of freezing and thawing Southwest.

A hint of encouragement was given by Broomhall who said that importers are watching developments in North America carefully as supplies in Europe are beginning to decrease gradually. No. 1 Manitoba wheat from Vancouver is selling at $1.44 and No. 5 at $1.27½, which is the same as Rose Fe 64-35 grain.

Corn prices broke sharply with wheat, but the market showed more resistance to pressure. There was some bearish feeling over reports of cheap Argentine offerings in the United States and favorable rains which indicate a large crop in the South American country.

On the other hand some of the commission houses are turning more bullish toward corn. Weather has been favorable for the movement for several weeks now and country offerings show little disposition to increase. In addition there is the natural supposition that the continued spell of subnormal temperature is increasing feed use. The hog corn ratio is on the most favorable basis for corn bulls in some time, traders point out.

Cars of grain received and inspected: Wheat, 23; corn, 218; oats, 10; rye, none, and barley, 18.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Eggs took a further drop in price today, as this morning's quotations cut it down one cent. The price range effective today is 39 to 44 cents a dozen, which is several cents off last week quotations.

The good supply of eggs being turned in from various parts of this county is responsible for keeping the prices down this year, grocers say.

Emperor grapes, from California, are decidedly higher today, selling at 25 cents a pound. This is the result of a scarcity of these grapes at this season of the year.

Mimes Cast to Appear In Second Public Performance

The second public production of the Marion Mimes, "The House of a Thousand Thrills," will go on the Central Junior High school stage at 8:15 o'clock tonight.

A mystery play in three acts, this production differs widely from the gay and frothy "Adam and Eva," the first public show of the Mimes. There is comedy that is riotous, and mystery that is deep, to afford entertainment for any audience.

The advance seat sale has been promising. Tickets will be on sale at the door tonight.

Arthur A. Huffman First in Sheriff Race

Arthur A. Huffman, 260 East George st., and not W. A. Huffman, of the same address, will be a Democratic candidate for sheriff at the August primaries. A story carried in The Star yesterday stated that W. A. Huffman would seek the office. It was stated today, however, that Arthur A. Huffman, son of W. A. Huffman, would be the candidate.

Arthur Huffman is the first member of either party to definitely declare himself as a candidate for the sheriff's office.

Wedding Kept Secret More Than Two Years

Through a misunderstanding of roommates of the former Miss Margaret Trimble, secretary in county offices at Marysville, an announcement as made that her marriage to C. G. Smithson, former Marion man, had taken place in Kentucky about six months ago.

The first account given in The Star was correct. Miss Trimble was married to Mr. Smithson on Sept. 30, 1927, in Walton, Ky. The marriage had been kept secret, and only the immediate families knew the exact date when the wedding took place.

Mr. Smithson met a tragic death in an automobile accident Sunday, in which he and his two companions were killed. It was not until then then that his marriage became generally known. At the time of her husband's death, Mrs. Smithson was at the home of his mother, Mrs. Caroline Rinehart, at Edison.

Don Basin Miners Burn 4,000 Ikons in Bonfire

MOSCOW—In a gigantic anti-religious demonstration of 15,000 coal miners in the district of Gorlovka, Don basin, 4,000 ikons were burned in a huge bonfire. The ikons were taken from numerous churches in the district, all of which were ordered closed for worship and will be turned into clubs. The miners proudly sent a telegram about the celebration and bonfire to Joseph Stalin as General Secretary of the Communist party.

Considering the fact that the State Export Trade corporation is buying up thousands of ikons for sale abroad, the news of 4,000 of these precious relics of an ancient art going up in smoke was probably received with chagrin in Moscow.

N. Y. SKYSCRAPER IS HIGHER THAN TOWER

New Chrysler Building Is 78 Stories High: Cost 15 Million

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—"Seventy-eighth floor, please."

This will soon be a common, every day salutation to elevator operators at the new Chrysler building, 78 stories high, the tallest structure in the world which is almost ready for occupancy. The first tenant probably will be the Texas Co. which is scheduled to move in April 1.

The beautiful new Chrysler building, its tower piercing the clouds, dwarfs the other tall structures in New York City. It is slightly over 1,000 feet high. The Woolworth building, long famous for its height, is 792 feet and 58 stories. The Chrysler skyscraper is even taller than the Eiffel tower in Paris.

Architect's Pride

With a tinge of pride in his voice, William Van Alen, prominent New York architect, who conceived the new $15,000,000 Chrysler building, referred to it as "the most modern building in America."

"It is my interpretation of what a real skyscraper should be," Mr. Van Alen told International News Service. "It is an entirely different type of architecture and based on my studies of buildings in America and Europe.

"Instead of the usual vertical lines this building is a combination of vertical and horizontal lines, the horizontal lines being used to accentuate the vertical lines. One of the new things about the building is its metal copings and metal ornamentation."

Asked if he believed that even higher buildings than this one would be built, the architect replied affirmatively. The height limit of a structure with the steel and materials available at present is between 2,000 and 2,500 feet, he said. He added that the height of a building "is determined by the size of its plot and by its elevators."

Battery of Elevators

The elevators in the new Chrysler building will number 31 and will be self operating—the button type.

"Skyscrapers help make a city beautiful in appearance," said Mr. Van Alen. "What is more beautiful than New York's skyline with its inspiring skyscrapers in the forefront?

"I believe the new Chrysler building will have its effect on other future skyscrapers all over the country. The tendency in big cities is increasingly toward the skyscraper because of its economic advantages."

There are now 377 skyscrapers in the United States, half of which are located in New York City where the new Chrysler building assumes a dominant position.

Captain Scott's last diary, which is preserved at the British Museum, is one of the most asked for exhibits, especially among schoolboy visitors.

creased so that 20 horsepower more than the engine's rating was required. The engine, during the test, pulled two large air compressors.

The engine used in the test was a 125-horsepower model. It will be built in 90, 125 and 180 horsepower sizes.

Plan Immediate Production

According to Owens, production of the engines in the three sizes will be started immediately. Contracts closed within the last few weeks indicate that they will produce a good volume of business this year.

The Power Manufacturing Co. recently closed an order for delivery of 48 out of 100 engines being purchased by a large cotton gin company in the south. The remainder of the engines will be of the Bolinder type and will be built in Stockholm, Sweden.

Since there is practically no tariff on engines of this type shipped into the United States, European companies offer competition that is hard to meet, according to Owens. He says the Bolinder engines can be made in Stockholm, shipped in Swedish vessels to New Orleans and distributed by river boats through the entire Mississippi valley at one-third less cost than American companies can make and deliver them. Owens is well satisfied that the Power Manufacturing Co. was able to obtain the order for 48 of the engines. There is practically no tariff on engines of this type for the protection of the American manufacturer. As a result high wages in America is forced to compete with low pay in Europe.

Owens stated today that all his plants were operating on a full time basis so far as number of hours a week were concerned.

"At present," he stated, "we have three times as much business on our books as we have had anytime since 1918."

No matter how many members each nation will have on the committee, there will be only one vote for each nation so nothing will be effected by it except by unanimous vote.

The first public session of the conference revealed that there are still wide differences of opinion, but all present expressed optimism at its conclusion that an agreement was in sight on the basis of the proposal which will allow a limited percentage of transfer of craft of the smaller categories.

Hugh Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, at the request of Secretary of State Stimson, gave a lucid explanation of America's stand in the Anglo-French controversy as to whether limitation should be by global tonnage or by categories at today's plenary session of the London naval arms conference.

He said that America was willing to consider the special needs of the various governments although generally favorable to limitation by categories.

Charged with Laziness

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

That persistent feeling of tiredness—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system. Excess acid, formed in the stomach as a result of our unnatural eating habits, causes acid-indigestion with gas, sourness and burning and sets up poisonous putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal that saps our strength and vitality, taxes our nerves and pulls us down physically and mentally.

Magnesia Oxoids, developed in Germany by a famous, 100-year-old pharmaceutical house, correct acidity in the right way! Upon contact with the acid in the stomach, Magnesia Oxoids generate nascent, or active, oxygen. The "live" oxygen stimulates the alkaline gastric mucus, checks putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal and stimulates the activities of the intestinal walls which aids the natural movement of the bowels. All three effects are necessary to the true correction of acidity.

5-Day Acidity Test

To ascertain just how "acid" you are, make this test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from Bradley's Drug Store or any other good druggist. Take two after each meal for five days and see how much better you feel—how much more soundly you sleep, and how much more energy you have. If you don't get more than amazing results, return the balance of the Oxoids to the druggist and he will refund the purchase price promptly and in full. A-1-S General —Adv.

Police Pension Problem To Be Up At Board Session

Question of Whether Proposed Change in Scale Would Apply to Present Officers Creates Complication; Meeting Wednesday Night

With the recent completion of a board of trustees for the firemen's pension fund, pensions for local firemen and policemen may soon be determined, together with the age at which the men will be eligible for retirement.

The completed firemen's pension board, which has not yet been organized, consists of Fire Chief T. J. McFarland, Fireman J. R. Yazel, Councilman W. G. Slack, Councilman R. G. Smallwood, Harry Fies and W. B. Strayer.

The police pension board, which has been organized and in operation approximately two months, is yet debating some pertinent questions, some of which may be threshed out at a meeting Friday night.

Two-Thirds Pay Set

Two years ago city council passed legislation allowing retired policemen two-thirds of their salaries as pension. Two men were retired on that basis, and it was the understanding of the remainder of the force that their retirement would be under the same terms.

However, the pension board apparently desires to change the amount of the pensions. Some members of the board, who claim to be backed by an opinion of the attorney general, say that any changes made in the pension can only be applied to policement who are employed after the changes are effected. They claim that all present members of the force will retire on the two-thirds salary basis, and that this basis for pension cannot be changed to affect the men now on the force.

This question is a pressing one, since several applications for pensions are expected at a meeting of the board Friday night.

Another question is the significance of a retired policeman being an ex-service man. These war veterans are given an advantage in civil service examinations for policemen, and consequently stand a better chance of securing a position on the police force than the man who has seen no war service. Some of these ex-service men also receive pensions from the government, according to members of the board.

Double Pension Considered

The board of trustees of the policemen's pension fund is now debating whether or not the ex-service man who is receiving a pension from the government is also entitled to full pension from the city on retirement, or whether he should be paid the difference between the government pension and the full pension paid by the city.

The police pension fund consists of the following members: from the police force, E. C. Mackan and Capt. Ira Shrock; from city council, M. W. Kline and John Schneider; disinterested members, Fred Scheff and James Fies. Scheff is chairman of the board, and Patrolman Mackan is secretary.

Stefansson Declares They Landed at Greenland Back in 1000

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 30—The Irish discovered America in 1000 A. D.

While they didn't quite get to the mainland, their arrival at Greenland was as important a step as Columbus' landing at San Salvador, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, "dean of Arctic explorers," told an audience at the University of Iowa here last night.

The chain of islands connecting Greenland to the mainland, Stefansson contended, was as much a part of America as the island the Italian explorer claimed for Spain 400 years later.

WHISKY VICTIM

That's Picture Painted of Brady at Murder Trial

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 30—Held up as a victim of bootleg whisky who through excessive drinking lost all sense of right or wrong, John W. Brady, former brilliant attorney and assistant attorney general of Texas, neared the end of his murder trial today.

Brady, identified by witness as the attacker of Lehlia Highsmith, 26, stenographer, on the night she was slain and is "clinically insane," two physicians testified. Still another doctor was expected to be called today.

"Chronic alcoholism," was the verdict of Dr. Goodall Wooten, Brady's family physician for 35 years. "He has no knowledge of the difference between right and wrong. He is insane."

The new premier had encountered considerable difficulty in finding suitable ministers, as his cabinet is admittedly only a transitional one.

The proposed ministry will now be submitted to King Alfonso for his approval.

While the streets of Madrid and other Spanish cities were heavily patrolled by soldiers and police today to forestall any demonstrations against the new regime, no disturbances were reported.

Pays Wedding Bills with Phoney Checks

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo.—On all the money Jack Dean dispensed for a ring, breakfast, cigars and other paraphernalia incident to a New Year's day wedding, only Rev. Rex Kinsell, who performed the ceremony, came out ahead.

Even the bride, the former Lillian Etcheverry, was fooled. She has filed an annulment suit.

For his wedding expenses, Dean wrote worthless checks. He borrowed $10 to pay the minister.

CLAIMS AGE SHOULD NOT BE DETERRENT

Management Engineer Says Executives Past 40 Should Be in Demand

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30—"Age in years as such not only is not a deterrent to the employment of executives, but, in numerous cases, furnishes a positive argument in favor of their employment."

These conclusions were stated here today at the personnel administration conference of the American Management association by J. P. Jordon, New York management engineer.

Jordon particularly fixed much of the blame for the difficulty of unemployed executives to secure employment on the men themselves. He said further:

"Any man who has lived carefully, kept up to date in the matter of technical changes and who has not allowed the zest of accomplishment to fade from everyday life can unquestionably obtain employment at almost any age—certainly up to 60.

"What is most often called 'too old' is a state of either mental or physical petrification or atrophy brought about by the individual himself, which conditions begins to become fixed and noticeable around the age of 40."

Golf courses, cocktail parties night clubs and the like tend to bury the executive's talents, Jordon declared, but the executive who "has an open mind, who is alert, who studies and masters the science of human leadership and who plays the game hard," is never out of a job.

MARION AUTO DRIVER EXONERATED BY JURY

Herbert Garster Held Blameless in Fatal Accident at Sharon, Pa.

Herbert Garster, 325 Pearl st., has been exonerated by a Sharon, Pa., jury of any fault in an accident on Jan. 25, 1 o'clock in the morning, which caused the death of Ellah Reese, 62, of that city.

Garster, a traveling salesman, and Frank Lary, of Sharon, Pa., said to be a former policeman, figured in the accident which caused the death of Reese, who was a passenger in Lary's car.

Garster was traveling on a main thoroughfare and the Lary car came from a side street, resulting in the crash. Lary testified he stopped before entering the thoroughfare from the side street.

The jury recommended a traffic light be installed at the intersection where the accident occurred, and that it be kept in operation at all hours.

KENTON MAN FIGHTS FOR STATE POSITION

Factory Inspector Files Action in Court To Prevent Removal

COLUMBUS, Jan. 30—In order to retain his position as supervisor of factory and building inspection in the state department of industrial relations, Wallace J. Camper, Democrat, of Kenton, today filed an action in the Franklin county courts here to prevent Will T. Blake, superintendent of the department of industrial relations, from removing him from his position.

Camper cites in his petition that he was ordered out of office because of political reasons. The case was carried to the state civil service commission for a hearing today.

It is alleged that Camper, a World war veteran, took an active part in the November election at Kenton in 1928. His activities, it is said, were centered in precinct C, fourth ward, at Kenton, where he conducted a personal campaign.

Camper was appointed to the position in 1923 by former Gov. Vic Donahey.

University Student Unable to Reduce Takes Own Life

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—Ashamed of her obesity and despondent over her inability to reduce, Maria Busacca, 19-year-old New York university freshman, took her life in the gas-filled kitchen of her Brooklyn home here today.

Maria, according to her mother, had worried greatly over the fact that she weighed 235 pounds and was unable to lose weight by dieting or exercise.

The girl was an exceptional student. She was graduated from the Englewood, N. J., high school last June with honors.

Grundy Becomes One of Congress' Most Bashful

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—Senator Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania, who told the senate lobby investigating committee before Christmas senators from certain "backward states" should talk small, is doing just that himself since Governor Fisher awarded him the senatorial toga. During his brief time in office Grundy has become one of the most bashful and silent members of congress.

The new congressional directory, issued today, placed Grundy in this category. The brevity of his autobiography has surprised his colleagues. It merely gives his name, residence, date of appointment and term of service.

Grundy has already applied modern American business methods in his office. Assigned, as new senators generally are, to a comparatively small office, he has had constructed a partition making two sections of the outer office. In front of the partition, that is, the entrance, a corps of stenographers and office assistants are kept busy, and in back of this, in a separate office, is Grundy's secretary, Leighton C. Taylor.

However, it is not difficult to reach the new Pennsylvania senator. The hard job is to get him to talk.

The talkative, self possessed former tariff lobbyist who appeared before the lobby committee is no more. In his place is a suave, close mouthed man who apparently keeps his own counsel and answers questions cheerfully or not at all—mostly not at all.

13 ARE INJURED BY SIXTH BOMB BLAST

Extortionists Blamed for Explosion That Wrecks Chicago Building

CHICAGO, Jan. 30—The sixth bomb in 24 hours burst here today with a roar heard for miles, injured 13 persons and caused damage estimated at more than $100,000.

The injured were cut by flying glass and showering debris; others were hurled to the ground by the force of the explosion.

So powerful was the blast that the two-story grocery of John Culotta, at whom the blast was aimed, flew into the air and settled with a terrific crash. No one was in the building at the time. The bomb was the most powerful exploded in Chicago in years.

Extortionists were blamed by police for the attack. Culotta had received five letters from black hand workers demanding $5,000. He ignored the demands and notified police who maintained a guard over the grocery yesterday.

The building was wrecked by a mysterious fire last December and was later repaired. Culotta blamed extortionists for that attack.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD IN RICHWOOD CHURCH

Mrs. Anna James, Widow of Minister, Stricken While Saying Prayer

(Special to The Star)

RICHWOOD, Jan. 30—Mrs. Anna Jones James, widow of the Rev. T. P. James, died suddenly while attending the mid-week prayer service at the Baptist church here last night. Death was pronounced due to apoplexy.

Mrs. James had responded to a request for volunteer prayers and was stricken before finishing her offering. She was dead when friends reached her side in time to prevent her falling to the floor.

Mrs. James, who was 72 years of age, was born in Wales, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Jones. She had been a resident of Richwood for more than 20 years, her husband serving as pastor of the local Baptist church for several years. The Rev. Mr. James also served the Radnor pastorate. Mrs. James was a member of the Baptist church.

Surviving are the following children: Miss Elizabeth James, at home; Mrs. David Whitehead, Richwood; Mrs. Charles Norris and Mrs. Guy Heckerman, Marion, and Mrs. Albert Hamkinson, Granville. One sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Nicholson, Terre Haute, Ind., also survives. Her husband died in 1911.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home, Reverend Peirce, pastor of the Baptist church officiating. Interment will be made in the Radnor cemetery.

SAYS "MELTING POT" FAILS TO OPERATE

Alien "Slag" Will Not Melt, Speaker on Immigration Tells Kiwanians

An intimate glimpse of the immigration problem as it appears to one who has lived with immigration uppermost in his mind for years was given Kiwanians today by George W. Bope, of Columbus, formerly chairman of the Federal Immigration Board with headquarters at Washington and Ellis Island.

"America is becoming a polyglot boarding house," Mr. Bope declared. "'The melting pot' theory is a myth —the slag won't melt."

"Of our 15 millions of foreign-born, seven and a half millions are not naturalized, and six millions are rated by the public health service as illiterate," he said.

"What is the answer? What is the remedy?" Mr. Bope asked. "None, until the congress shall see fit to strengthen the existing law. An effective way to do that would be to provide for the registration of every un-naturalized alien in the United States, and then compel him to keep registered and at his own expense for the privilege of being in this country. In due course, when one is found who is not registered, place on him, and not on the government, the burden of establishing his right to be in this country—and when he fails, give him a sea voyage.

"When we begin doing that, the man over there who contemplates coming here is not going to expend $300 or $400 for steamship passage, knowing that upon arrival, or sooner or later, he will be taken into custody and deported as an unlawful entrant."

Marion Lowest in Living Cost, Is Survey Report

IT costs the head of a Marion household $1,442 a year to maintain a family of four members "on a standard of living below which a family in the United States should not be allowed to fall," according to a report recently made public by the National Industrial Conference board.

The report covered a survey of 12 industrial cities in four states. It was made in 1927. A small, medium sized and large city were selected in each state.

Of the four small cities included in the survey the cost of maintaining a family of four on the proposed standard was lowest in Marion. Dayton had the lowest cost for the medium sized cities covered in the survey. The cost there was $1,504. Other medium sized cities classed with Dayton were Reading, Pa., $1,618; Springfield, Mass., $1,560, and Syracuse, N. Y., $1,602.

The cost of maintaining a family of four in the large cities was Boston, $1,627; Cleveland, $1,552; New York, $1,660; and Philadelphia, $1,628.

Of the four states surveyed, Ohio had the lowest average. The average for this state was $1,512. New York state topped the list with an average of $1,643.

The cost of maintaining a Marion family of four on the "standard" is $70 below the average for the state of Ohio, the survey shows.

SETTLEMENT IS MADE FOR CONDUIT DAMAGE

City To Be Reimbursed for Wire Lines Marred in Paving Work

Final settlement of contractors and the C., D. & M. Electric Co. with the city of Marion for their share of the expense in rebuilding the underground conduits for uptown traffic lights, which were destroyed in the course of last year's street construction work, was effected yesterday, according to T. E. Sonnanstine, director of public safety.

Of the $531.41 spent in rebuilding these conduits, the C., D. & M. will pay $157.10, P. Drake & Sons will pay $100, and Kobbarger, Brady & O'Connell will pay $50. The city holds the bag for $224.31, which officials say is a fair settlement, for not only are the conduits new but they are better protected than the former conduits.

The wires which carried current to the traffic lights at Prospect and Center sts., Main and Center sts., and State and Center sts. were housed underground in gas pipe. When steam shovels excavated the street bed to prepare for a concrete foundation, the shovels often struck these pipes and bent or broke them.

The new conduits were laid just before the concrete foundation was poured. A lead cable housing the wires was pulled through a fibre ing, which in turn was protected being housed in concrete.

Thin Seek To Take on Weight and Buxom Ones Aim To Reduce in Y Gym Classes

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

[illegible] it's for the fat ones [illegible] want to reduce, and [illegible] ones that want to put [illegible] That's one answer [illegible] whys and wherefores of [illegible] gym and swimming [illegible] each Wednesday and [illegible] night at the Y. M. C.

[illegible] there are about 81 [illegible] questionably youthful [illegible] enrolled in the two [illegible] conducted on these nights [illegible] Rhea King, and Miss [illegible] From 7:30 to 8:30 [illegible] Miss King has classes in [illegible] on the second floor [illegible] that time Miss Miles has [illegible] classes in the basement [illegible] From 8:30 o'clock to [illegible] the order of classes [illegible]

[illegible] suits are o. k. on the [illegible] it seems that there [illegible] objections raised to the girls wearing them in gym classes. Personally, Miss King thinks the idea is a good one.

Bloomers Predominate

Last night there were about 25 women present in the gym class taught by Miss King. Most of them were in conventional white middy and black bloomer gym outfits, but there were several outstanding "numbers." Among these was one werra, werra short pair of trunks, black edged in white.

Some of the girls wore cotton stockings, some silk stockings, some rolled stockings, and a great many more were sensible and wore no stockings at all.

Setting-up exercises, games and folk dancing are included in the gym work. And what a struggle it is for some of the older "girls" to "jump to position," "swing the arms over the head in a circle and straight out in front," or any of the peppy exercises that have been mapped out by the instructor.

There are only five girls in Miss King's classes who can not swim. In one hour last week she taught one girl to swim. As soon as all the girls can swim, the class will take up life saving.

Ideal Recreation

There's a great deal of fun in going to classes like these, if the people in them will enter into the snap and spirit of the idea, instead of slouching through the exercises, and struggling against learning to swim.

To a great many of those in the classes, the floor work was a reminder of gym classes at Harding High school. Undoubtedly, it is memories of the good times in the high school classes, and the benefits reaped in the exercising, that have given the Y classes their large enrollment.

DON'T COUGH YOUR ENERGY AWAY

HOW a cough will mar your winter joys! Why let it waste your energy? Take a spoonful of Pertussin at the first sign of a cough. It soothes and helps to clear the throat from phlegm and it is absolutely harmless. Recommended by physicians; sold everywhere.

Pertussin

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Cod Liver Oil Influences Hatchability of Eggs
And Is Essential Poultry Ration During Winter Feeding

Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful substitute for Sunshine, consequently its use is essential in rations that are fed during the winter and early spring when hens are confined to the laying house.

Successful poultrymen obtain good results by adding one pint of biologically tested Cod Liver Oil to 100 pounds of mash or scratch feed to the laying hens.

Experiment has proved that birds fed Cod Liver Oil are more healthy, and fertility and hatchability of eggs from these hens is increased.

EVANGELIST SPEAKS

One Response Comes to Altar Call at Calvary Church

There was one response to the altar call at Calvary Evangelical church last night at the conclusion of a sermon by Dr. John Owen, one of the three evangelists who are at the church for a six-day series of meetings. The evangelists are conducting three services each day.

In his sermon last night Dr. Owen said: "God has placed before us life and death and given us the power to choose between them. When conditions are met, He will save to the uttermost. It would be worth while to be saved for this world alone, but how much more worth while it is when we are saved, not only for this life, but for all eternity."

There was a good attendance last night, and for the morning and afternoon services. Dr. C. W. Butler will preach tonight.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30—Happy New Year!

In Cleveland's Chinatown that's the greeting today, probably not in the same words but in words that mean the same thing.

The Chinese new year began today. It is the year 19—signifying the nineteenth anniversary of the establishment of the Chinese Republic.

For several days celebration of the event has been under way with feasting and festivities. Today, however, climaxes the jubilee.

UNABLE TO LOCATE DERELICT RUM BOAT

Authorities Check Origin of Report After Search About Pelee Is Fruitless

SANDUSKY, Jan. 30—After an unsuccessful two-hour search by airplane for a derelict rum craft carrying the frozen body of a man which was reported found Tuesday in the ice wastes off the western tip of Pelee island, authorities today were attempting to check the origin of the report.

Sheriff John W. Parker personally conducted the airplane search for the craft yesterday. Accompanied by Pilot Joe Esch, sheriff Parker flew over Canadian Lake Erie ice within a radius of 20 miles of Pelee island, but found neither a derelict launch nor traces of where such a craft had been removed.

"We absolutely failed to verify the rumors" the sheriff declared.

Upon first receipt of the rumor it was believed that the reported derelict craft could possibly be that of the Grey Ghost, a notorious rum launch which cleared from Erieau, Ont., last Jan. 9 with 100 cases of liquor and mysteriously disappeared.

COOPER, M'CULLOCH TO SEEK REELECTION

Indicate Approval of Each Other at McKinley Day Banquet in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30—The first inroad for their campaign for reelection had been laid here today by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper and Senator Roscoe McCulloch following their appearance in Cleveland last night at the twenty-seventh annual McKinley day banquet at the Tippecanoe club.

The governor and Senator McCulloch indicated their approval of each other as running mates in the forthcoming November elections and their expectations of reelection and the support of Cuyahoga county.

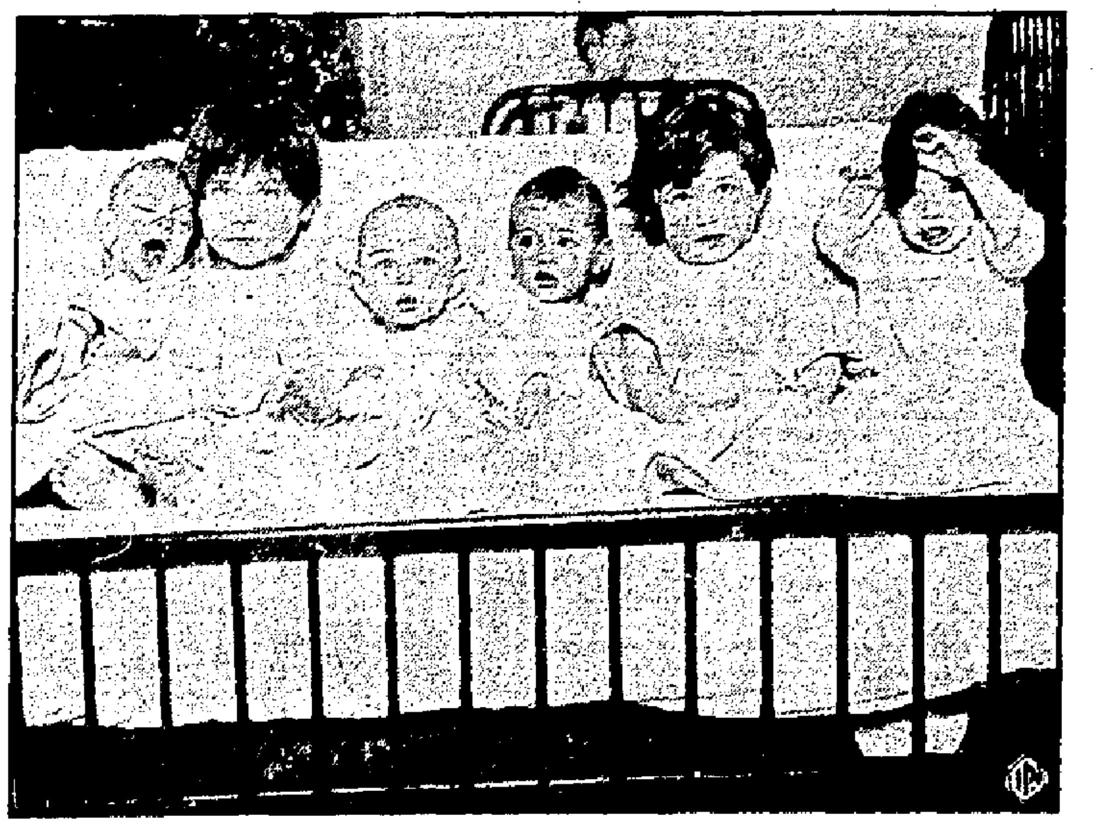
Political observers found in the tone of Governor Cooper's speech an indication that he will seek reelection on the record of his administration. McCulloch hailed the state's chief executive as "one of the greatest governors in the history of our state."

Governor Cooper devoted a considerable portion of his address to the accomplishments of his administration, mentioning that in his term steps had been taken toward remedying the lack of facilities for caring for the feeble-minded by starting work on the Apple Creek institution. He declared also that the general complaint as to tardiness in affording relief to workers has been met with efficiency and promptness.

Senator McCulloch, after eulogizing the late Senator Burton whom he succeeded in the senate, dwelt on the proposed tariff bill and condemned the senate coalition between Insurgent Republicans and Southern Democrats.

One of the guests of honor at the banquet last night was Senator Charles Dick of Akron who was an intimate friend of the late President McKinley.

NEW JERSEY BABY FARM VICTIMS



These six children, ranging in age from five days to eighteen months, are shown in the Elizabeth Hospital, Elizabeth, N. J., after being taken away from a "baby farm" suffering from neglect and sharing cribs with mangy dogs. Two women who ran the "farm" are being held on charges of cruelty to children. Police are seeking the parents of the babies through a record of payments found in the filthy house where they were being confined.

Early Days of Famous People

Despite His Father's Determination To Make Him a Musician, Guido Reni Obeyed the Call of Genius and Became an Immortal Painter.

"LAY aside picture-making and devote yourself to music, for musician you shall be," said stern-faced Daniel Reni to his little son, Guido, one day in Calvenzano, near Bologna, Italy, in 1583. And Guido, then aged eight, gravely listened. But as his father's words came to him he heard another voice—the voice of genius speaking from within—bidding him lay aside thought of music and to devote himself to the art of drawing and painting. And it was this bidding that the boy chose to obey.

But, though Guido showed unmistakable genius for the pencil in that period of his childhood development, his father held firmly to the decision he had voiced against "picture-making"—and attempted forcibly to suppress the child's gift.

So, at the outset, little Guido Reni found the way pointed by his genius beset with difficulties and encountered opposition that threatened to block his progress. But his gift was too strong to be held down.

In spite of paternal forbiddance, the little boy followed the urging of his genius and persisted in drawing pictures. Detected in this and deprived of paper and pencils by his irate father, he improvised drawing sticks out of charcoal and sketched scenes and figures on walls and with pointed bits of wood and stone drew pictures in the dust on the ground. His father then sought to put an end to such "picture-making" by so circumscribing the boy's daytime activities that no time for drawing was available. But Guido circumvented that restriction by in some undisclosed manner obtaining materials and a lamp and continuing his efforts in his room at nights.

Being some months later discovered in his pursuit of the forbidden art Guido was punished by his father and his lamp was taken from him. But with money given him by an uncle the little boy purchased another and, keeping it hidden under his bed by day, "carried on."

This persistence of Guido Reni in "picture-making" art was more in obedience to the dictate of his genius than in disobedience of his father. He found himself unable to pursue the harmonies of music when the harmonies in his mind and heart were of lines and colors.

And little Guido's steadfast devotion to his genius was shortly to be rewarded with help from the outside. On going to the palace of the Duke of Bologna with his father, a few weeks after the lamp episode, the boy was observed studying the pictures on the walls by Denys Calvart, a Flemish artist who was then painting these. Upon questioning Guido, the artist noted in the answers received a hint of the genius that was developing in the child—and he approached Daniele Reni with offers to instruct his little son in "picture-making." And to this—after the duke, who had learned the story of Guido, had spoken in his behalf—the father assented. And so the parental opposition was at last withdrawn and the way was cleared for the development of little Guido's genius.

Guido Reni's progress under the Flemish artist's instruction was very rapid. He startled those around him with his quickness not only in acquiring the art of his master but in giving it new and original application. So notable was his advance that at thirteen his work attracted attention in Bologna—and in recognition of his achievements he was sometimes appointed to teach other students of painting. It was not long before he was selected by Calvart to be his "background" worker in the production of his pictures.

Guido Reni was born in Calvenzano, near Bologna, Italy, November 4, 1575. He died in Bologna, August 18, 1642. Among his more famous pictures are "Phoebus and the Hours Preceded by Aurora," "Fortune," an "Ecce Homo," the "Conception," "Christ Crucified," "Madonna della Pieta," "The Israelites Gathering Manna" and a portrait of so-called Beatrice Cenci.

Community Fund Agencies Doing Extensive Service

Four Organizations Now Caring for 232 Families Numbering Approximately 2,000 Persons. Survey of Present Situation Discloses

The present conditions in Marion ... to light yesterday show that ... its four organizations, St. ... de Paul society, City Union ... King's Daughters, Salvation ... and Red Cross, the Marion ... fund is taking care of ... families, approximating 2,000 ...

... families taken care of by ... fund have from six to eight ...

At present, the things needed most ... fund are a cook stove and a ... drawers. These are all that ... necessary to establish one ... family in a comfortable posi- ...

Transfer Planned

... the plan of the fund to care ... family by removing the members from their present hovel of fur... rooms into rooms that will ... furnishing.

Any persons having furniture ... they wish to put to this ... cause should call the Community fund offices and give these in ... a list of the furniture they ... and where it may be picked up. Persons calling the offices should leave their telephone numbers.

Another request is that families or individuals in need of anyone to do odd jobs around the home or place of business, call 2676, the Community fund offices, and leave name and the work to be done.

In this way, all those men, and in many cases, women and young boys and girls who are willing and capable of working, will be given jobs for at least an hour or two a day. Several men have earned money in moving coal from one house to another, cleaning sidewalks, etc.

Response from Outside

When the call for help went out last Thursday night, responses came in from Galion and Mt. Gilead. In addition to the clothing sent from Mt. Gilead, one man sent in a check for $5. Two persons from Upper Sandusky were in the city Saturday trying to get in touch with an elderly woman to do housework.

Marion people came through the clothing campaign admirably, and in addition to clothing, one man sent in a check for $20 and another a $10 grocery order. A grocery company sent in enough supplies to feed several families for a week or more.

Since last Friday, one of the organizations in the fund gave out $130 worth of food. Friday and Saturday, this same organization gave out 14 tons of coal. There are four such charity organizations in the fund, and the extent of the aid given by the combined charities can be estimated from this one report.

The Community Fund offices are working overtime to take care of the calls that come in for food, clothing, heat and employment.

On the Streets of Marion

WITH STAR STAFF

Cold-Proof

THIS was the last we saw of him.

A bum, who openly and gayly confessed to having drunk everything made that contained any alcohol, and who but several moments before had borrowed a small quantity of water to mix with denatured alcohol, which was his latest liquor, was hanging around a local gas station yesterday.

After having begun to feel the effects of the denatured alcohol, he announced that he believed he'd visit the Salvation Army hall for some clothing.

Taking off his overcoat and leaving it at the station, he prepared to start for the Army hall.

Underneath the overcoat was a sweater, a pair of overalls, a heavy blue shirt, and three suits of clean, white, woolen underwear!

The coatless idea was a good one. Anyone with any heart at all, would have sympathized with a man who had no coat on a cold day.

Whether or not he ever got to the Salvation Army hall, those who were watching him didn't find out, but if he had had to stay out in the open all night, all the underwear and outer clothing would have made him impervious to zero weather.

Customers Classified

ONE gasoline station operator near Marion apparently has two prices—one for home trade and the other for tourists—and it seems that he doesn't care who knows it. At any rate, he was open and above board with his discriminatory charges several nights ago.

A tourist who ran out of gas on a road near the city was given a lift to the gas station by a farmer living nearby. There the station operator was informed of the traveler's predicament and a gallon of gas was bought to get the stalled engine going.

The stranger was informed that the gallon of fuel would cost 25 cents and that rent of the can would be 75 cents, to be refunded on return of the receptacle.

This seemed to be fair and satisfactory until the farmer who had given the stranger a lift decided that he would buy some gas also.

The price to him was 17 cents a gallon. The difference of eight cents a gallon puzzled the tourist.

"Pardon my curiosity," he said, keeping his tone down to as mild a degree as possible, "but how come that I pay 25 cents a gallon and my friend here is taxed only 17 cents?"

Obviously the filling station man was considerably put out by his customer's tendency to question his business policy.

"Well, I guess you had to have the gasoline, didn't you?" was his comeback.

In the face of this incontrovertible, even though indefensible argument, the motorist went on his way with the gasoline can. Evidently he decided that this was one of the penalties that are inescapable when motorists venture far from home.

"I GAINED 25 POUNDS, THANKS TO NEW KONJOLA"

New and Different Medicine Puts An End to Quarter-Century of Misery

MRS. WILLIAM HENNING

Remarkable, but true, Konjola seems at its best when pitted against the stubborn cases that have held on year after year, defying all medicines and treatments tried. Just see what Konjola did for Mrs. William Henning, Swanton, near Toledo. Read these words that should encourage all who are seeking better health:

"For twenty-five years I endured the agonies of indigestion, constipation, headaches and dizzy spells. My limbs and ankles were swollen to twice their normal size; I did not know what a good night's sleep was. I lost in weight and strength as medicine after medicine I tried failed to help me. Konjola was recommended to me, and the wisest decision I ever made was when I decided to put this new medicine to the test. In five weeks I gained 25 pounds, and am enjoying today the best health I ever had. No wonder I am enthusiastic about this amazing medicine."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sons Pharmacy, and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

New Beauty for the New Ford

THE NEW FORD TOWN SEDAN

In the Town Sedan you see a distinguished example of the unbroken sweep of line which adds so much charm to all the new, roomy Ford bodies. Radiator, hood, cowl, lower roof line, fenders, wheels — every point of design reflects the new style and beauty that have been placed within the means of every one. All of the new Ford cars are finished in a variety of colors.

ANOTHER STEP FORWARD

THE introduction of the new Ford bodies has set a high standard of motor car value. From the new deep radiator to the tip of the curving rear fender, there is an unbroken sweep of line—a flowing grace of contour gaining added charm from the rich and attractive colors.

You will take a real pride in the smart style and fresh new beauty of the Ford just as you will find an ever-growing satisfaction in its safety, comfort, speed, acceleration, ease of control, reliability and economy. In appearance, as in mechanical construction, craftsmanship has been put into mass production. New beauty has been added to outstanding performance.

A feature of unusual interest is the use of Rustless Steel for the radiator shell, head lamps, cowl finish strip, hub caps, tail lamp and other exposed metal parts. This steel will not rust, corrode or tarnish and will retain its bright brilliance for the life of the car. Here, as in so many other important details, you see evidence of the enduring quality that has been built into the new Ford.

Daily Proverb—"Babbling, foolish vanity and vain curiosity have the same parentage."

The explanation of the exploit of that Budapest man, who has gone for years without sleep, may be that he has an unusually strong radio set and is addicted to "fishing!"

If the agreement between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald regarding the reduction of cruiser strength were a bear, one might suspect that the latter is looking for assistance in the letting-go of its tail.

The Rev. Henry Darlington says that "shortly there will be those who will want to prescribe not only what we shall eat and drink, but what we shall wear." The Rev. Henry has been asleep at the switch. There have been people like that loose in the country for years.

The people of Washington apparently are unable to decide which is the greater menace to their peace of mind—their energetic panther or their starlings—but it's a cinch that the former is causing a greater strain on their imaginations.

Burglars entered the home of A. D. Lasker at Lake Forest, Illinois, and stole $1,000 worth of silverware, a $350 overcoat and a polo coat valued at $1,000. Well, well! Playing polo is one offense we never would have thought of charging against so busy a man as Albert!

That panther being hunted down in Washington has acquired such marked activity in evading pursuit and extermination that it is now able to appear simultaneously in eleven different and widely scattered districts of the city.

New York City's swell Casino restaurant is proving something of a financial frost. It is evident that it is either too swell to be a paying proposition, or not swell enough to attract those with more money than brains.

Fines aggregating $176,903 were collected a day or two ago from the wife of a New York real estate operator and a San Francisco financier for their activities in attempting to smuggle goods into the port of New York. One might imagine that, in time, people with more money than discretion would cease exhibiting their egotism in this particular way.

In the light of recent senate lobby committee incidents, it might be the course of wisdom for the commission to lay in a couple of pairs of ten-ounce boxing gloves. Such a purchase might come in handy in saving the composite face of that dignified body.

Congressman Stone, of Oklahoma, has introduced a bill to amend the oath of office so that all government employes and officials from the president down to clerks and stenographers will be required to pledge themselves to refrain from the use of intoxicants and narcotics. The congressman's action indicates that it might be well to amend the bill that all may be compelled to exercise such brains as they may possess.

Protection for the Pedestrian.

Pedestrians whose jumping ability has not been improved by frequent practice are cheered by a decision of the United States district court of appeals guaranteeing legal protection from the time they step into the highway until they complete the crossing, even though the signal may change during that time. In other words, the pedestrian's right-of-way is established definitely. If he is struck by an autoist, the negligence is not his who walks, but his who drives.

In part the decision says: "When a pedestrian steps from the curb to cross the street having a green signal with him, he does so by way of invitation, and he can not be charged with contributory neglect if the signal switches when he is in the street. Caught in this position, the obligation rests upon the motorist not only to observe the situation, but to wait until the crossing is clear."

Many drivers seem to believe that with the shift of signal lights their right-of-way is immediately assured. In this belief they start their machines regardless of pedestrians still in the middle of the street. There is a resultant scramble to attain a place of safety, attended by an occasional injury if the motorist lacks some degree of consideration.

Violations of crossing courtesy are comparatively infrequent. The majority of drivers approaching this city's many unprotected intersections observe commendable caution in most cases, but it is the small group observing no courtesy rules at all which brings down the wrath of the pedestrians.

There are too many intersections in the city to make police protection at all of them possible. The responsibility belongs to the motorist. If he will observe ordinary consideration and remember the days when he was a pedestrian himself the situation will soon remedy itself.

The Retirement of Primo de Rivera.

General Primo de Rivera, who as premier and dictator ruled Spain with an iron hand for the past seven years, has been succeeded by General Damaso Berenguer, who was called to the premiership by King Alfonso immediately upon the receipt and acceptance of the resignation of the former premier.

De Rivera, who with the backing of the army and navy leaders of Spain, made himself dictator, a few days ago agreed to retire if such were the will of the military leaders. The army and navy chiefs indicated that such was their will and the resignation followed.

While the relations between Alfonso and De Rivera were unquestionably very pleasant for years and outwardly have been until very recently, it has been suspected, of late, that there was a rift in their friendship. The calling of Berenguer, the outstanding opponent of De Rivera, to the premiership has a tendency to strengthen this suspicion. In many quarters, in fact, it has been taken as absolute evidence of a lessening of the friendly relations which once obtained, despite the published statement that the king was loathe, but a few months before, to accept an earlier resignation, feeling that there was no other man in Spain fitted to take De Rivera's place.

Be the facts concerning this what they may, Primo de Rivera has done a great work for Spain. It will be the natural tendency of his enemies to speak ill of him and his labors in Spain's behalf, yet there is the unescapable fact that he assumed the role of dictator at a time when Spain was on the very brink of revolution and anarchy, and quickly forced those who conspired against the government into at least a semblance of respect for law and order.

There has been some disorder and some riotous demonstrations in Spain in the months since De Rivera announced that he planned to retire owing to lack of health. The announcement no doubt led to much of it. But while he was himself De Rivera was master of all Spain. He may not have been loved by Spain, but he was feared by that element which sought to turn the government over to anarchy, and the ability to preserve law and order through the fear he cast into such an element is not to be belittled. And none will gainsay that he is alike morally and physically a brave man, which again works for admiration.

Even Premier MacDonald should begin to realize that it's up to him to cease working off that old stuff about stopping work on two cruisers, or get a couple of different cruisers. Even to the casual reader, the thing has lost any effectiveness it might originally have possessed.

One of the four owners of a St. Louis hotel property and two of his employes are under arrest, charged with the burning of the hotel to get insurance on it with a resultant loss of seven lives. Consideration of human life holds little place in the thoughts of those given to the criminal acquisition of gold.

Commendable Action by the Senate.

Even those whose esteem for the United States senate has decidedly waned in recent years must commend it for its amendment to the tariff bill by which the "courtesy of the port" and any and all similar privileges are denied to members of congress and other government officials returning from trips to or sojourns in foreign lands.

Such privileges should be rescinded not only because they have been shamefully abused, but also because they are so utterly foreign to the basic principles upon which our government was founded and so conspicuously contravene the plan of the founding fathers that ours should be a government of equal privileges to all and special privileges to none.

The conferring of such privileges works injustice to all those upon whom they are not conferred, as it gives those they select or pay to secure them privileges they themselves do not possess. And even though this injustice were passed; even though such violation of the principles of democracy were overlooked; even though such privileges did not invite abuse and result in abuse, they would yet be objectionable for the reason that they tend to promote in greater or less degree a spirit of snobbishness, which is objectionable in a government of any form.

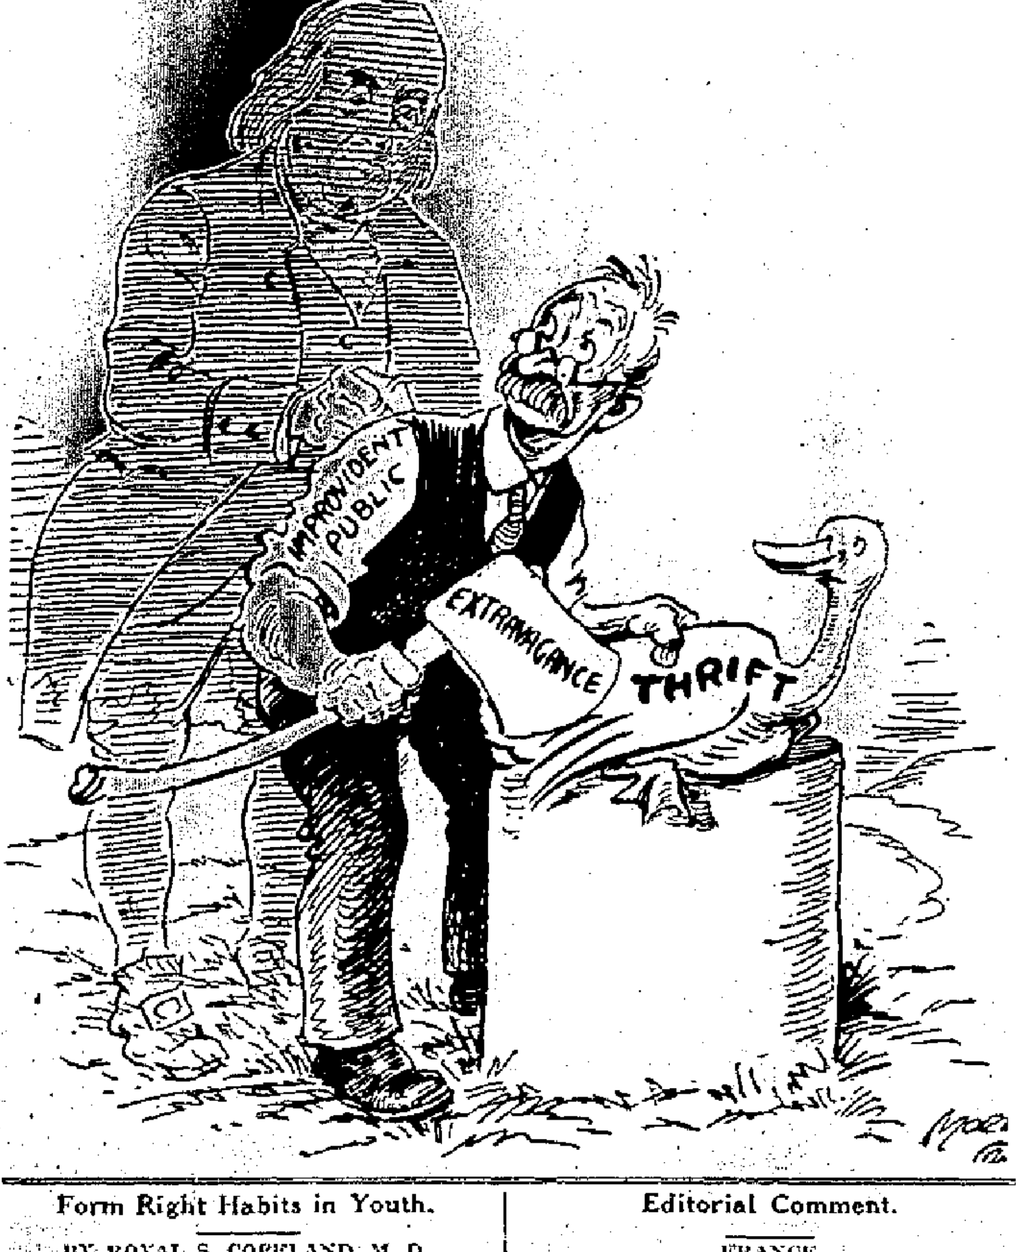
A rural economist, who has made a study of the situation in eight Ohio townships, says that the old order has changed, and that the girls are now the first to leave their farm homes. At this distance, this rural economist's utterance doesn't sound so much like a change from the old order. It's decidedly remindful of the old Garden of Eden stuff to the effect that the woman did it.

Two men out in Frankfort, Illinois, are suing each other for the alienation of the same woman's affections, the woman in the case having divorced one to marry the other only to divorce the latter and remarry the former, and the oddest phase of the thing is that the [illegible] husband seems the more deeply grieved, asking $25,000 damages, while the first and third husband asks but $5,000. A really good, dependable wife should command a premium out that way.

Chairman Wickersham says that he will submit the proposal for 2.75 beer to the law enforcement commission, but he makes plain that he doesn't favor the proposal and doubts that it will be considered by the membership. Let's see! Wasn't there some ultra-dry objection to Mr. Wickersham as a member of the commission on the ground that he was a wet?

It is charged that five women, four of them widows of policemen and the fifth the daughter of another, have illegally drawn $15,432.04 from the New York City pension fund, one of the widows being charged with having accepted $6,322.34 despite the fact that she remarried back in 1898. Some people are liable to lean to the view that there has been something of the nature of carelessness in the handling of New York's pension fund.

SHADE OF BEN FRANKLIN: "DON T KILL THE GOOSE THAT LAYS THE GOLDEN EGG OF HAPPPINESS AND SUCCESS."



Form Right Habits in Youth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

"Character is simply habit long continued," said Plutarch, that wise philosopher of the ancient Greeks. There is no doubt but he was right. Our daily habits have much to do in moulding character.

You can not go far in this world without a good character. To this end it is essential that we form good habits in our earliest youth. Every parent is responsible for the habits acquired by the child. It may take vigilance, but it is far better to see that your child forms good habits than to permit bad habits which will curse his future.

There are plenty of habits formed in youth that are a menace to future good health. Chief of these are the habits of eating. Some persons have digestive organs which seem capable of handling almost anything that falls short of rocks and hardware. They appear to be able to eat anything and suffer no ill effects.

I consider it unwise to treat any stomach, no matter how willing it may be, to such hardships. Children are apt to bolt their food, to be notional about what they eat, and to refuse to eat what is good for them. If you are guardian to such a child, you must be firm in helping him to form right habits of eating.

It is important to prevent a child from forming a habit of eating too much sugar, or too much salt, or too much meat, or too much of anything. He must have a balanced diet, and the more variety of food he takes the better. Eternal vigilance must be yours in this habit-forming stage of his career.

We all discover, some time, that some one thing is bad for us. Perhaps we have formed a great liking for pork, pastry, candy, or one of a hundred different things. We may find that something does not agree with us, something perhaps that has stood us in good stead for years past. Now is the time that we can give evidence of real character by changing our eating habits. We find that we feel better, and are better, by reducing the consumption of whatever has been determined upon as destructive of our welfare.

There can be no doubt that certain foodstuffs are poisonous to some people. There is no use trying to overcome the effects. You just have to eliminate all or part of such a food. Tobacco and alcohol are in the same category. If one of them does you harm and produces ill effects in your body and brain, you just can not afford to indulge in it.

Form good sleeping habits. Most people need eight hours of good sleep every night in the week, "day in and day out." Some get along on five, but the chances are that the person who does not get enough sleep will lessen his body resistance to disease. It is something to think about.

Is it your good habit to take a vigorous walk each day, if you are not exercising your body some other way? That is also most essential to your health.

J. B. Q—What can I do to gain weight? If I drink milk it causes welts which are very irritating; what causes this condition? I have taken cod-liver oil and seem to be full of life and pep?

Editorial Comment.

FRANCE.

Scarcely veiled as they are by the polite utterances and gestures of diplomatic policy and usage, Premier Tardieu makes it rather plain that, irrespective of what else the conference assembled at London may do, France must have ironclad assurances for the safeguarding and uninterrupted development of her rightly styled imperial interests.

The facts: France is the center of a realm so huge that its possibilities of prosperous development and power challenge the powers of the imagination to conceive of their actual and potential magnitude.

France is now the second greatest colonial power in the world. Only Great Britain is her near rival. The colonial area of France totals the astounding figure of 4,000,000 square miles, with a native population of 60,000,000, one and one-half times as many as live under the tricolor in Europe. She possesses the largest and finest army in the world today. She flies her flag in Africa, Asia, America and Australasia. She is in China and the Indian ocean, in Tahiti and New Caledonia. She is able to gather under her banner Algerians, Moroccans, Senegalese and Somalis—if she can have what she desires out of the London naval conference.

To France the maintenance of communications with her colonial possessions is as important as England's maintenance of communication with her possessions around the globe. She needs, demands and must have a strong navy. She needs it in order that she may have the assurance of an almost practically inexhaustible source of man-power in the event of war, in addition to the peace possibilities of her foreign empire. She must, if she is to carry forward her colonial policy and dreams, especially in this day of airplanes, be able to protect her line of communication across the Mediterranean, over which her more or less savage hordes can be brought in time of need to fill the ranks of her armies in coming European wars. She is as vitally interested in the Mediterranean as are Great Britain and Italy, as were the elder great nations who saw its importance and utilized its strategic advantages. England's position and policy here are too well known for discussion. Italy has her North Africa and her visions of a restored mighty national power. Here may develop international rivalry, ultimate war.

M. Tardieu will continue to urge the "very considerable requirements of the French republic," whose coasts are scattered over three seas and whose integrity is not to be threatened by any possible contingency.

And what Tardieu says, each power is saying by word or act.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BRAVE LOVERS.

Irene Shrader, "the blond gunwoman," goes through the usual "accused" antics of preferring death to disloyalty to her lover.

Glenn Dague, the lover, accused with her of the murder of the Pennsylvania state patrolman, Brady Paul, and Irene were described enroute from Arizona, the state of their capture, back to Pennsylvania, as sitting in the drawing-room which Irene occupied, billing and cooing and speaking the age-old platitudes that each will take death rather than desert the other.

Prisoners have said that before. But one recalls few cases of the noble souls who maintained this role of devotion when the thumb screws went too tight.

Henry Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder, avowed the same thing when arrested, but went to death with hatred for one another, each blaming the other for his own ruination.

If Mrs. Shrader and Glen Dague can maintain this role of abnegation and sacrifice, the one for the other, they will be a unique pair of criminals.

It's one thing to bill and coo on a transcontinental train under the glamorous spotlight of a sentimental world looking for its thrills, and it's another thing to live the story book role of lover when the state demands an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth sends visions of death as the penalty for such a reckless love.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Kingdom of Nepal.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Sanskrit, we know, is a dead language. One of the deadest, in fact! Nevertheless, traces of it are still to be found among those races which can trace their history back through century after century.

One such race is to be found in the little independent kingdom of Nepal which nestles on the northeastern border of the Indian empire, between India and Tibet. Its people are known as Newars and they have brought through the ages a marvelous artistry which manifests itself most obviously in their architecture.

Nepal is small. It is about 525 miles in length and has a breadth which ranges from ninety to 140 miles. In inhabitable area it is smaller still, for along the northern boundary—the Tibetan line—there is nothing but mountains. And they are some of the highest mountains in the world, the lofty peaks of the Himalayas, including the impregnable Mount Everest.

There is a strange combination of races in Nepal and this has brought about an equally mixed religious situation. Both Buddhism and Hinduism are well represented and both have numerous shrines throughout the kingdom. It is in the construction of these temples that the workmanship of the natives shows itself beautifully.

Pashpatti, a most inaccessible place, is the holiest shrine in Nepal. It lies along the banks of the Bagmati river into which those who are dying wish to be immersed. This immersion, so they are taught, will endow them with a spirituality which can be acquired no other way. It is still more helpful to the life hereafter, if these devotees may be buried along the banks of the stream.

The terraces and temples at Pashpatti reflect the old, old art of these people. They are Oriental in cast but most noteworthy for the beauty and intricacy of the carving and designing of their pillars and cornices.

At Bhatgaon, one of the three largest cities of Nepal, is a marvelous example of Newar workmanship. It is one of the temples dedicated to Kali, the consort of Siva. The entrance is nothing but a mass of carved figures in glided bronze or wood. This carving would do justice to a worker in gold or silver, so fine and detailed is it.

Other temples, as well, show this really remarkable ability of the Newars. There is the temple of Shambu-Nath, for example. This is surrounded by a wal of masonry and grille work which has been executed with the utmost pains. At points here and there along the wall are carved statues representing beasts and other figures. Incidentally this temple, which is under supervision of a lama superior in Tibet, is said to shelter a sacred flame which has never been extinguished. It has been burning since the beginning of time, the lamas will tell you.

Strange in their beliefs and practices, none the less these natives of Nepal deserve high recognition for their innate sense of beauty.

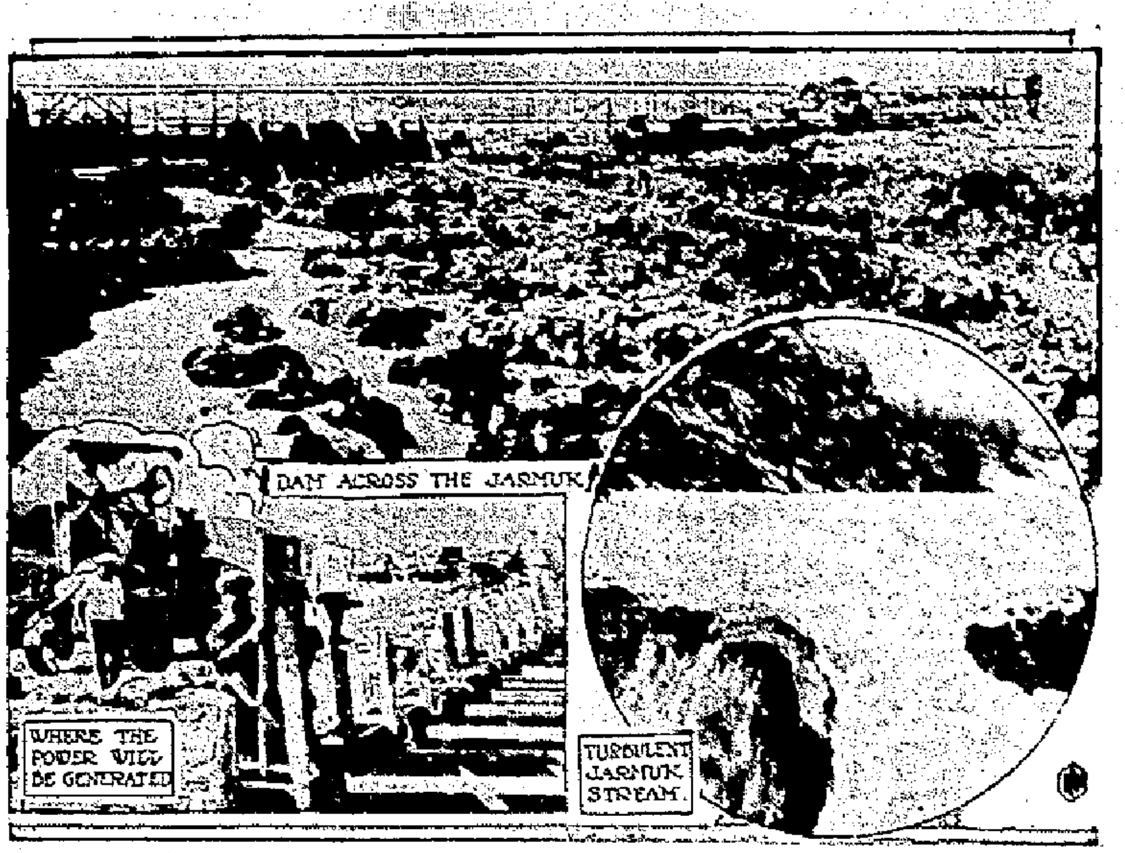
BRINGING ELECTRICITY TO HOLY LAND



WHILE Jordan river rolls on, it will be bringing power, light and prosperity to the people of Palestine. After many years of planning, the ambitious project of the Russian engineer, Rutenberg is at last to become reality, and the Holy Land will be the scene of one of the largest electrical enterprises in Europe.

Since the Palestine mandate became effective the Holy Land has seen steady influx of population. And modern methods in working and living are fast superseding primitive conditions in even the smallest settlement. And so the hum of the dynamo is to sound its note of progress, and Jerusalem is to bask in the glow of the arc lamp.

The turbulent waters of the Jordan, which at some points falls 100 feet, are to be utilized, and in addition to the harnessing of this power, 25 foot dams are to be erected in this river and the Jermuk River just above the confluence of the two streams. A lake 750 feet wide and 6 miles long is to be built in order to hold the water necessary to generate the water power. After three giant turbines have done their work, the water will be turned back to the rivers. It is estimated that there will be an excess current of 6,300 volts, and this power will be transformed to high tension and be then conveyed to the principal transformer station. From this point, the power will be conveyed to Haifa and the settlement of Tel-Aviv, the all-Jewish city.

It is expected that the Rutenberg project will bring much prosperity to Jerusalem and plans are being made for factories and plants on an ambitious scale all calculated to bring the Holy Land, in line with progress and modern achievement. Work is being rushed and it is hoped to complete the various units by the spring.
